USDA Slowly Converts Farm Into Pastureland

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Clay Center — It's a mighty bite that comes from a half dozen five-bottoms, but even at 150 acres a day this "farm" has plenty of plowing ahead.

Perhaps ex-farm is more descriptive for the U.S. Meat Animal Research Center, for pasture is taking over as fast as conditions permit. By 1970 virtually the entire 35,000-acre spread will be in grass.

"Since August we have seeded 2,900 acres to cool-season grasses, but that's only about 10% of what we anticipate eventually," noted Walter Rowden, assistant director of the expanding USDA operation. "It will require lots of acreage to graze 19,000 research animals."

Cancelling crop leases on some 12,000 acres Sept. 1, the station is now two-thirds of the way toward its ultimate announced area. Among other things that signals full speed ahead on plowing, discing and grass seeding. "Right now we're plowing 5,400 acres of alfalfa ground that leasing farmers hadn't gone over for an average seven or eight years," said Dean Humphrey, operations assistant. "We can plow only 150 acres of this a day and disc 300 acres of other ground, so there's plenty of work ahead."

Divided between warm and cool season grasses, some 8,700 acres are programmed for seeding next year. Big bluestem, Indian grass and Sideoats Gramma comprise the warm-season native plantings; smooth brome and intermediate wheat grass are being introduced as cool season varieties. Alfalfa is being sown in the cool season fields and another legume, birdsfoot trefoil, will be planted in the warm-season designations. Sorghum is being used as a cover crop, added Humphrey.

—promotion of higher level domestic consumption.
—encouragement of exports.
—improved educational and technical training opportunities.
—extension of agricultural research.

"The President has managed not only to keep farm income below the 3.4% hike allowed other industries, but has forced farmers to suffer a decrease in income," Denney said.

Nebraska farmers alone lost $3.5 million dollars when Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman secured a 14% reduction in storage rates for all 1961 stored crops, Denney said.

"The farmer," he declared, "should have the opportunity to recover the cost of producing products and get a 4% to 5% return on his investment to provide a decent living for his family."

VALERIE . . . Incoherent Youth Not A Suspect

Chicago (AP)—County and local authorities said Wednesday a youth who incoherently mentioned the slaying of Valerie Percy is not considered a suspect in the Sept. 18 murder of the daughter of Republican senatorial candidate Charles H. Percy.

Oak Lawn police reported the youth, who gave his name as Gerald Welsh, 19, was being held for a parole violation when he made the remarks about the murder. Police denied that Walsh, of Chicago, admitted to the killing.

Capt. Robert Shelley of the Oak Lawn police said he was satisfied that the youth was not involved in the murder of the 21-year-old girl.

A lawyer representing the youth told police the boy often makes rash statements when he is picked up by police.

Undersheriff Edmund Kucharski of Cook County said the youth was being transferred to the Cook County Jail for further questioning.

Officials in suburban Kenilworth, where the Percy girl was slain, said they received no information from Oak Lawn authorities. State's attorney's investigators and Chicago detectives also regarded the youth's statements as having little substance.

Miss Percy was beaten and stabbed to death in her bed by an intruder who cut his way into the 17-room lakeshore mansion. Police have checked out more than 500 leads since the investigation started, but have disclosed no clues that would lead to the identity of the murder.

Negro Bands Rampage Through Oakland Area

From Press Reports

Oakland, Calif. — Bands of rioting Negroes rampaged through a section of Oakland Wednesday night smashing windows, assaulting persons and hurling Molotov cocktails.

A wedge of 60 police armed with shotguns cleared the streets.

The outbreak occurred following a tense afternoon during which Negro youths invaded a high school, beat up five teachers and smashed windows.

The racial unrest brought hundreds of Negroes into the streets in bands up to 200. Police broke up the crowds almost as quickly as they gathered but the marauding youths regrouped and moved into other areas.

When a gang of Negro rioters moved along 14th Street smashing windows and attacking passersby, police rushed in reinforcements and sealed off the area.

A force of officers moved up the street, clearing the area within minutes. Auto and bus traffic was diverted around the area.

There was sporadic resistance to the police, with some of the Negroes jeering and throwing stones and bottles. Many gasoline bottle fire-bombs were thrown but did not explode.

Shotgun Patrols

Police set up shotgun patrols on each corner and ordered an immediate curfew in the area about eight miles southeast of downtown Oakland.

"We have closed Castlemont High School because of fear of physical violence," said Stuart S. Phillips, Oakland superintendent of schools.

The disorders were a re-sumption of a rampage in East Oakland by roving Negro teen-age gangs during which five whites were beaten up, 19 persons arrested and 47 business firms were damaged.

Phillips blamed the disorders at Castlemont on a committee which called Wednesday for a three-day boycott of junior and senior high schools, charging that education at three predominantly Negro schools was inferior.

Castlemont officials also said the trouble was spurred in part by Negroes trying to get back inside for lunch after joining the boycott in the morning.

A nearby supermarket had to be closed after 75 juveniles raced about, snatching merchandise and knocking over bookshelves.

The disorders began Tuesday night in East Oakland and spread downtown after a traffic accident involving a Negro woman's car. Police arrested a young Negro woman passerby after they said she flew into a rage. Her brother intervened and was arrested. The disorders grew and spread.

Boston School Board Says Chinese White

Boston (AP)—Chinese-American public school children in Boston have been officially declared white by the School Committee in the latest phase of the controversy over racial imbalance in schools.

Classification as white of the 671 pupils in two schools in the Chinatown section was intended to remove them from the racially imbalanced category.

The enrollments in the two schools in Chinatown are almost completely Chinese.

Chairman William G. Saltonstall of the state board of education said Wednesday, "I have been brought up to believe there is a white race, a black race, a yellow race, and the Chinese are of the yellow race."

Saltonstall said he did not believe the state board would accept the classification . . . "I know I won't."

Among the Chinese-American adults, there was mixed reaction.

Ging Hing Chin, father of five school-age children, said he "couldn't understand why they did it . . . It bothers me."

Chuck Soo Hoo, a Chinatown resident, shrugged off the decision with "makes no difference, we are still Chinese."

Ancestors Unchanged
A mother of three who declined use of her name said, "We are proud of our race but what the committee says doesn't change our ancestry."

School Committeeman Joseph Lee, member of an old Boston family, sponsored the switch which the committee unanimously adopted.

The School Committee has been embroiled with the state board over the issue of racial imbalance, but only as it concerns Negroes.

The state board has withheld some $16 million in state funds from Boston, awaiting a satisfactory plan to correct racial imbalance in the city's schools.

And the committee has appealed to the courts, seeking to have the state racial imbalance law declared unconstitutional. The committee also contends the state board has exceeded authority by withholding funds.

Under the state formula which terms racially imbalanced any school with over 50% nonwhite, Boston has 46 schools in conflict with the law. There are 191 public schools in the city.

A School Committee spokesman said the school department would not feel the effect of the state withholding funds until next January. He explained that the 1966 budget was approved months ago and made no provision for the state funds.

Theologian Warns Against Falsely Optimistic Christian Fundamentalism

By BOB SCHREFF
Star Staff Writer

A nationally known theologian Wednesday warned against a new Christian fundamentalism which is falsely optimistic and blind to the complex nature of the world.

Dr. Martin E. Marty, chairman of the history of Christianity field at the University of Chicago Divinity School, said that while he had no criticism of its main drift, the new fundamentalism "is the doctrinaire attitude toward reality which rules out conflicting evidence and variety and eventually action."

"To say that the secular world is a spirit with a single definition is getting back to the limited belief of the white, protestant, middle-class intellectual," he charged, adding that "We claim to be knowing more about the future of man . . . we are told in advance what we will be permitted to believe."

Regional Meet

Dr. Marty, a native Nebraskan, spoke to delegates at the Central West Regional Meeting of the United Church of Christ. The meeting, which ends Thursday, is being held at First Plymouth United Church of Christ.

Although praising the "In theology" for its love for the gospel and as a responsible spokesman for human desires, he said "so rich and fruitful have been these theologies that we are hesitant to examine them for fear of regressions. Hardening has set in to such a point that we fail to understand or serve the world."

Dr. Marty called for a new self-critical approach by the Church. "Take the world apart analytically. Ask what in it has potential or is neutral, what frustrates Christ's mandates. Look for its variety, its contradictions, its wholeness and gaps," he said.

Two Worlds

The theologian said Christians should realize that this generation lives in two worlds: "the swinging world of seminarians, architects, civil rights leaders, folk singers and social engineers, and also a world where fear marks the eyes of those who live in Selma and Cicero, where ugliness pollutes our landscape . . . where nice guys finish last."

In another address Wednesday, the Rev. Dr. Alford Carleton of New York, executive vice president of the United Church Board for World Ministries, said today's fast-changing world has become a "no man's land" for missionaries.

"In the past missionaries have pictured themselves as living on the frontier, with the Christian world behind them and the non-Christian or un-Christian world out in front," he declared.

Many Frontiers

"Now we know there are many frontiers. We are in a no man's land and not sure which way we should march."

Dr. Carleton said today's missionary is often accused of "paternalism" and "patronage" by those he helps and of "going off wild-eyed after revolutionary schemes" by those at home who do not understand the complex nature of the world.

Ministers and laymen from 10 states are attending the Central West Regional meeting. The region includes 1,091 churches with some 258,300 members.

To Join War On Asia Ills

500 YOUTHS
BOO HIM

From Press Reports

Wellington, New Zealand (UPI) — President Johnson, buoyed by a thunderous reception from thousands of cheering New Zealanders, Thursday challenged North Viet Nam to join the United States and "your brothers in Southeast Asia" in a war against poverty, disease and hunger.

The President spoke at a luncheon meeting of members of the New Zealand parliament, delivering the first major address of his six-nation tour of the Far East.

"What's To Gain?"

"What can be gained in continuing a war you cannot win?" Johnson asked the Hanoi regime.

Johnson later flew to Australia after his 24-hour visit to New Zealand climaxed by public pledges of allied unity in Viet Nam and a chanting, booing antiwar demonstration.

Police estimated that 60,000 New Zealanders lined the streets of downtown Wellington as the President and Mrs. Johnson traveled in their bubbletop limousine to parliament.

Pledges Traded

There Johnson and Prime Minister Keith J. Holyoake exchanged pledges to fend off aggression and search for peace in the conflict in Viet Nam where New Zealand has 200 artillerymen under Australian command.

But a crowd of about 500 youthful demonstrators heckled Johnson and scuffled with police outside Parliament House steps and tore down a "peace no war" placard in a scuffle with two bearded young men.

Jeers, Catcalls

As Johnson climbed out of his bubbletop limousine and walked up the building's broad steps with Holyoake, the hecklers let loose a din of jeers and catcalls.

The President replied with a Churchillian "V-for-victory" sign.

He also waved breezily to a crowd of office workers and children in school uniforms.

The Labor Party opposition leader, Norman Kirk, joined in the welcome for the President although Kirk opposes the Holyoake government's policy of sending combat troops to fight in Viet Nam.

Holyoake's National Party is being challenged by Kirk's Laborites in a general election Nov. 25.

Wrong Target

Johnson later declared the hecklers were demonstrating against the wrong man. If they could produce North Vietnamese leaders, he said, he would produce himself at a conference table.

Criss-crossing the capital on the first visit ever by an American president to New Zealand, Johnson kept stopping his limousine to step out and shake hands of well-wishing onlookers.

Mrs. Johnson attracted what seemed like the biggest single crowd of the visit when some 5,000 New Zealanders, by police estimate, pressed around the terminal of Wellington's scenic cable car run to cheer and applaud the First Lady on her ride.

Displays In Another Museum Share Knowledge Of Scholarly Ex-Dentist

Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Republican City — Why sit home with 91 years of knowledge when you can start another museum and share it with the world?

Why indeed? So, old Doc Thomas continues his methodical chiseling on the bust of Red Cloud. Sometimes he turns to a saw and the half-done wooden buffalo that lies nearby.

"It's my great love for history that keeps me at things. Trouble is, I can only work about four hours a day now. I almost feel my age."

Rented Space

It was a year ago that the retired Hastings dentist (Dr. E. A.) rented space in Republican City's one-block shopping mall. Displays, many of them hand-lettered, now fill all the building but a workshop and improvised bedroom.

Life-size statuary, miniature Indian villages, enough pictures and maps and charts to paper the walls — they're Doc's tribute to "the greatest real estate deal in all history." That, he reminds every visitor, was the 1803 Louisiana Purchase.

"Great as the transaction was, I don't feel it has received the attention it properly deserves," said the still-scholarly nonagenarian.

A native of Cowles, Dr. Thomas is utilizing many of the same items he had displayed for years in a more ambitious home-town museum. Its closing diverted numerous pieces to the new Webster County Museum at Red Cloud; others are in Hastings' House of Yesterday.

Memoirs Saved

Saved for his own walls are memoirs of Dizzy Vance and Cy Young, both baseball greats of Cowles background. Some of Doc's oldest dental records are of Dizzy "when he was a kid of seven."

The Webster County of his early practice also got the dentist's attention in a book published in 1953. He was author as well of a history of the Hastings State Hospital.

Moving to Hastings in 1911 so he could help service the institution, Dr. Thomas used his own money to establish its first dental office. After volunteering his first vacation to treat mental patients, he was associated with the hospital part-time for 50 years.

Past President

A 1903 graduate of the University of Omaha Dental College, the oldster is a past president of the Nebraska State Dental Assn. He was also the first head of the National Association of Dental Editors.

Losing his wife Radley after 63 years together, the widower divides his time between his Hastings home and the museum project. Son Charles and daughter Francis, both of Hastings, help with the trips between.

Of all his displays, by the way, the most meaningful personally is an impressive plaque presented to him 13 years ago by Delta Sigma Delta. The dental fraternity's recognition for "distinguished and meritorious service" is an international award.

"The honor had gone to London the year previously," reflected the history hobbyist. "Then — think of it — they named someone clear out here in Louisiana Purchase territory."

NEBRASKA BUSINESS, RETAIL SALES MOUNT

Lincoln (AP)—Nebraska retail sales and general business activity showed substantial gains in August when compared to the same month a year ago, the University of Nebraska publication "Business in Nebraska" reported Wednesday.

The university said retail sales jumped 9.1%, with all 22 cities included in the report showing sale increases. General business activity jumped 8.6%, with 19 of the 22 cities showing gains in that category, it was noted.

South Sioux City showed the largest gain in general business activity, up 33.5%. Other cities registering increases included Chadron, 17.6; Kearney, 16; Norfolk, 11.6; McCook, 11.3; Holdrege, 10.2; Columbus, 9.9; Nebraska City, 9; Broken Bow, 8.6; Grand Island, 6.4; Alliance, 5.9; North Platte, 5.7; Scottsbluff, 5.1; Hastings, 4.7; York, 4.6; Omaha, 3.6; Lincoln, 3.4; Fairbury, 2.9, and Beatrice, 2.1.

Declines in general business activity during August were reported by Fremont, down 2.2%; Sidney, 1.2%, and Falls City, .1%.

York showed the largest jump in retail sales during August, up 24.9% from a year ago, with other major jumps reported by McCook, 17.4, South Sioux City, 17.2, and Columbus, 16.3.

Eight Towns Lack Phones In Snow Area

Omaha (AP)—A Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. spokesman said Wednesday eight communities in southwest Nebraska were still without normal telephone service as a result of last Friday's storm.

They were listed as Imperial, Palisade, Benkelman, Stratton, Trenton, Wauneta, Hayes Center and Haigler.

The spokesman said normal service probably would be restored to these communities within a few days. But in the meantime emergency microwave service linking Stratton with McCook was expected to be working before Thursday.

Some 180 crewmen from Iowa, Minnesota and South Dakota were called in to help with repairs.

Subsidized Housing Project In Norfolk Wins Approval

Norfolk (AP)—The Norfolk City Council has approved establishment of a federally subsidized project under terms of the 1965 Housing and Urban Development Act.

The approval, by a 5-3 vote Monday, makes possible a survey by the Federal Housing Administration, to determine if there is a need for such a project prior to application for federal funds and determination of the rental rate.

This program involved establishing rents based on income with the federal government subsidizing that portion of the rental cost which a couple or individual is unable to pay.

Attorney Tom Brogan, speaking for J. P. Daniel, the local sponsor, said apartments are intended primarily for those of small fixed income, such as social security, who may now be living in sub-standard dwellings because they are unable to pay current rents.

The project will contain primarily one and two-bedroom apartments and will be equipped with refrigerators and stoves. Utilities except for telephones, will be furnished.

Mitchell Woman Dies In Accident

Mitchell (AP)—Mrs. Sabina Bernal, 39, Mitchell, died Wednesday night of injuries suffered in a two-vehicle collision on a county road two miles west and three miles north of Mitchell.

The Safety Patrol said she was a passenger in a pickup truck driven by her son, Julio Bernal, 17, which collided with a car driven by Henry Summers, 65, of rural Morrill.

Three other Bernal children suffered minor injuries.

Seedsman Award Scholarship To Judith Seavers

The Nebraska Seedsman Association has awarded its annual $100 scholarship to Miss Judith Seavers, 20, a University of Nebraska sophomore and an agronomy major.

Daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. La Roy E. Seavers of Hebron, Judy is enrolled in the College of Agriculture and Home Economics and holds a better-than-perfect grade average.

The Nebraska Seedsman scholarship awarded on the basis of scholastic record, character, and financial need, makes a total of $560 in scholarships awarded to Miss Seavers for this school year. She previously was awarded a Regent's and a Luther Drake scholarship for the 1966-67 term.

Judith is a member of Agronomy Club and works part-time as a computer operator for the University of Nebraska Statistical Laboratory. She plans to do graduate work in plant genetics.

Denney Claims Watershed Credit Not Due Callan

Beatrice (AP)—Robert Denney, Republican candidate for Congress from the First District, declared Wednesday "the credit for the creation of watershed districts belongs to local efforts."

Denney said Rep. Clair Callan, a Democrat seeking reelection, is trying to make people believe watershed districts were established in the district through his efforts.

Denney told a Beatrice press conference that "the success or failure of a watershed is determined at local level when they are formed, assigned a priority by the state and reviewed by the appropriate federal agencies."

Only rarely does Congress ever refuse to approve a project, and then only if opposed by a congressman from the district, said Denney.

Youth Dies In Crash At Columbus

Columbus (UPI)—An Albion youth was killed late Tuesday night when the car he was driving collided with a truck on U.S. 81 one mile south of here.

The victim was Steve Livingston, 19.

The car he was driving was in collision with a truck driven by Richard Umstead of Columbus. Authorities said the truck was pulling onto the highway from a weighing scale drive when the crash occurred.

Injured were two passengers in the Livingston car, James Nolan, 20, of Albion, and Orville Milk, 27, of Salina. Kan. Nolan suffered scalp lacerations and a concussion. Milk had head lacerations and contusions. Both were in satisfactory condition in a local hospital.

Umstead was not injured.

Frontier Earnings Up 120% Over Last Year

Denver (UPI)—September net earnings for Frontier Airlines amounted to $310,034, raising the third quarter total to $817,229 for a 120% increase over $370,649 reported during the same period in 1965.

This was the highest financial quarter in the carrier's 20-year history.

Farm Bureau Federation Attacks 1967 U.S. Feed Grain Program

Washington (UPI)—The American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF) Wednesday cited "glaring contradictions" in the Agriculture Department's recently announced 1967 feed grain program.

AFBF President Charles B. Shuman said the program "represents a desperate attempt by the administration to meet increased food demands while keeping its empire of farm price and production controls intact."

"It is the same strategy used in the two increases in acreage allotments granted to wheat farmers in 1967," Shuman added.

The feed grain program announced by the department is designed to return 15 to 18 million acres into production and increase output by 20%.

to keep reserve around the 40 million ton level by October of 1968.

"One of the glaring contradictions . . . is that, while the administration says it wants increased production, it seeks to hold down production by requiring farmers to divert 20% of their corn-grain sorghum acreage base in order to qualify for a price support loan," Shuman said.

The AFBF official also was critical of the program's announced objective of maintaining adequate reserves while avoiding a surplus.

Five Girls Vie For Pork Queen

Grand Island — Five candidates are competing for the title of Nebraska Pork Queen for 1966-67 to be selected at the annual Nebraska pork banquet Sunday.

The Nebraska Swine Council reported that girls vying for the honor included the Misses Pat Bourn of Lexington, Alice Smith of Palmyra, Lynda Patefield of Laurel, Donna Gustafson of Emerson and Connie Nelson of Creighton.

Little Feed Grain Expected To Be Sold To Hold Prices

By OVID A. MARTIN
Washington (AP)—Farmers can feel fairly certain the government will sell little feed grain during the 1967 crop marketing season for the purpose of holding down prices.

During the past year, the Agriculture Department unloaded large quantities of corn and sorghum grain on markets.

Critics claimed this was done to put a brake on rising prices. The department denied this, saying some of its grain was needed to meet domestic and export demands.

There are four major reasons why the government will be anxious to have prices for the 1967 production of feed grains satisfactory to producers:

1. The department is asking farmers to produce about 20% more feed grains to help replenish supplies. Government actions to hold down prices in the face of such a request would be expected to arouse the ire of producers.

2. Government payments to farmers under the 1967 feed grain program will be cut almost in half from this year's level of $1.35 billion.

3. The 1967 feed grain crop will make up the supply for 1968, a presidential election year. Any government action affecting grain prices adversely could become a major farm issue.

4. If the government sought to hold down grain prices next year, farmers might be reluctant to carry out any future production recommendations of the department.

Deputy To Sub For Ky

Saigon (AP)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky announced Thursday that one of seven cabinet members who has resigned will head the South Vietnamese government while Ky and other leaders attend the Manila conference next week.

Ky told a crowded news conference that he was leaving the government in the hands of Deputy Premier Nguyen Luu Vien, one of the seven who quit and who had been scheduled to attend the Manila conference himself.

Several others of the seven dissenters were on the platform as he spoke, but as the news conference began the prime minister did not immediately explain whether their resignations had been accepted or withdrawn.

First Aid
The government has been making intensive efforts to patch up the cabinet crisis before the Manila meeting.

The cabinet walkout had been a blow to Ky because the ministers charged the predominantly military regime was corrupt. This would have damaged the regime's image at the Manila summit meeting on Viet Nam opening Monday.

Ky's press office, told about the report from unofficial sources that five ministers had withdrawn their resignations, announced a news conference will be held Thursday to clarify the situation.

To Chew Out Cop
The sources said Ky had agreed to rebuke the national police chief, Nguyen Ngoc Loan, accused by the seven ministers of ruthless action. They said the premier may also have made some other concessions.

A U.S. spokesman had said earlier in the day the crisis "should be regarded as serious," unlikely to be solved before the Manila meeting. But the overall situation seemed more an embarrassment to Ky than a threat to the rule of his military junta.

The resigning ministers said there is corruption in the regime and that they were "concerned that the nation is becoming a police state."

They said the military leaders should "stop poking their noses into business they know nothing about," and that they had insisted "the government show some signs of accomplishing something to better the life of the people in general."

The ministers' statement asserted "corruption is so rife they find it impossible to carry out their duties with any degree of efficiency."

Two Delegates
Two of those quitting were among the official delegates to Manila—Deputy Premier Nguyen Luu Vien and Finance Minister Au Trong.

The informants did not specify whether Vien and Trong were among those who were reported to have changed their minds about resigning.

Others resigning were the ministers for youth, social welfare, education, labor and transport.

Instead of making concessions to win over the discontented officials, the premier apparently intended to split their opposition.

The ministers who quit were all southerners. They cited a regional feud with Ky and other northerners.

Ouster Wanted
It was understood that southern dissenters had as an immediate target the ouster of the police director, whom they accused of ruthless acts.

The long-range point at issue, sources said, was southern efforts to establish a political foundation for the future at the expense of Ky's inner circle of northerners.

The Ky regime has lasted 16 months, longer than any other since the fall of the late President Ngo Dinh Diem. It was praised in recent months by top U.S. officials for its cohesion and endurance.

Power Northerners
The 35-member cabinet contained 12 southern ministers before the resignations. But real power rested with Ky and others who came originally from what is now communist-controlled North Viet Nam.

Senior GOP Senator Favors U.S. Unilateral Declaration Of Victory

Washington (UPI)—Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., urged the United States Wednesday to declare it has won a military victory in Viet Nam. He said he hoped such a declaration would be initiated at the Manila conference.

Aiken, the Senior Republican senator and a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said a unilateral declaration of victory would "herald the resumption of political warfare as the dominant theme in Viet Nam."

Chopper Toll High In Fracas

Saigon (AP)—Viet Cong gunners took a heavy toll of U.S. helicopters supporting the Vietnamese army in a big battle in the Mekong Delta, downing four and damaging 20, a U.S. spokesman said Wednesday. But casualties among the helicopter crewmen were described as very light.

The battle blazed up Tuesday between 1,000 Vietnamese soldiers and about 1,000 communist troops 25 miles southeast of Can Tho.

Severe fighting continued all day Wednesday. A Vietnamese spokesman said government casualties were moderate, an indication the force was hard hit.

The spokesman said 138 communist troops had been killed in the battle so far, about 100 of them by U.S. and Vietnamese air strikes.

The government troops also took three prisoners and captured 10 weapons and large amounts of ammunition.

Drive Imminent
In the air war, U.S. B52 bombers from Guam struck at suspected North Vietnamese camps just south of the Demilitarized Zone between the two Viet Nams. U.S. officials in Saigon said they believed the North Vietnamese will make a drive in this area soon.

The battleground near Can Tho, 90 miles southwest of Saigon, is a marshland long dominated by the Viet Cong. The Viet Cong shot down two U.S. Supersabers jets there a week ago.

Some of the American helicopters were hit Tuesday when they started lifting South Vietnamese troops into the area.

Sixteen unarmed helicopters hauling troops were hit and two of them knocked down. One of seven gunship helicopters providing cover was downed and the other six damaged.

Medical 'Copter
The fourth loss came Wednesday when a communist fire dropped a medical evacuation helicopter.

Three of the four crashed helicopters were recovered, an official report said.

The sources said that the communists set up 50-caliber machine guns in the troop landing zone in a cross-fire pattern, but did not open up until the helicopters had hauled in a large number of troops.

The American and Vietnamese air forces sent 33 jet fighter planes into the area Tuesday to suppress the Viet Cong fire, and used four other planes to drop flares during the night.

inant theme in Viet Nam."

"Until such a declaration is made, there is no prospect for political negotiations," he said.

Claims Shift
Claiming that a victory declaration would shift the burden of "suggesting" a wider war to the communists, Aiken said it should be coupled with:

—An end of U.S. bombing raids against North Viet Nam, replacing them with intensive reconnaissance flights.

—Gradual redeployment of American forces around strategic centers rather than a phased withdrawal of U.S. troops.

Aiken's proposal in a Senate speech drew prompt agreement from Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Fulbright, a frequent critic of the government's policy in Viet Nam, praised Aiken for coming up with a "new idea" for possibly halting the fighting in Viet Nam.

He asked Aiken if he thought a declaration of military victory should be made at the conference President Johnson will attend next week with Asian leaders.

'Might Be'
"That is the hope," Aiken said. "There might be action taken or an announcement at Manila that would lead to a declaration of military victory."

Mansfield said Aiken's proposals "will be given every consideration by the administration downtown."

Aiken's proposal for redeployment appeared similar to a theory advanced by former Gen. James P. Gavin in Viet Nam hearings last February before the Senate committee.

The United States could declare "that we have 'won' in

Benefits Hike Plan Given Up

Washington (AP)—With Congress galloping toward adjournment, the House Ways and Means Committee gave up Wednesday all efforts to try and rush through an increase in Social Security benefits to go into effect Jan. 1.

However, Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., held out hope that the committee would vote out such an increase next year with the effective date retroactive to Jan. 1. But he didn't say definitely this would be done.

Mills told newsmen Social Security legislation will be the first item of business for the committee when the new Congress convenes in January. It may take some time to get a bill through, as his committee plans to cover all aspects of Social Security, the chairman said.

Homey Lyndon Eases Reception's Stiffness

WOMAN TELLS HIM HE'S 'DOING A HELLUVA JOB'

By FRANCES LEWINE
Wellington, New Zealand (AP)—President Johnson, with a homey note, managed to ease the stiffness of his first formal social reception overseas.

It prompted one woman to tell the President: "You're doing a helluva job."

Three hundred New Zealanders — from cabinet members to cattlemen — were invited by the governor-general, Sir Bernard Fergusson, to meet the Johnsons Wednesday night in a grand setting at his official residence.

Protocol Rigid
It was black tie and "long frock" and the protocol was pretty rigid.

Guests gathered in the mansion's huge, flower-decked ballroom, with its heroic gold-framed portraits of British royalty. Twelve musicians from the Royal New Zealand Air Force Band played in the interlude until the Fergussons and the Johnsons arrived about 25 minutes late from a formal dinner party for 24.

Their coming was heralded by a flourish of drums. From separate doors at the end of the long ballroom, they emerged — the men from one side, the women from the other.

They stood in a stiff line on a two-step dais before two gold throne chairs and a great painting of Queen Elizabeth II. The band played "The Star Spangled Banner" and "God Save the Queen," while the four stood at attention, facing the waiting audience.

Mingle Instead
Then, instead of the receiving line you might expect, the four — some simply stepped down to mingle and handshake. The President and Sir Bernard went down one side of the room, together.

JOHNSONS . . . flanked by Sir Bernard, Lady Fergusson.

gether. Lady Bird Johnson and Lady Laura Fergusson went down to the other. It also was a signal to bring on champagne.

A drum roll suddenly silenced the gathering, while waiters were still passing out champagne, oysters, crayfish and assorted hors d'oeuvres.

At the signal, the foursome formed ranks abreast at the end of the room. The guests parted to make a broad path for them to march back to the dais. There, Sir Bernard, speaking on behalf of the queen, offered Johnson blessings and good wishes. He also invited Johnson to say a few words.

Johnson started out lightly, noting he was glad to be back in New Zealand where he served in World War II and joking that "things haven't changed a bit."

He said he found the same friendship, understanding and common interests and striving for peace.

Among those at the reception, Johnson pointed out, were two doctors—Dr. P. E. C. Brunette and surgeon Derek Ryder who had treated him in 1942 when he was hospitalized at Fiji Island with dengue fever. The President said he was unconscious with 105-degree fever then and a bit hazy now about what went on but "here I am."

"If you don't like it," he added with a grin, "blame them."

As guests applauded and laughed, one woman turned to a friend and said of the American President: "He's human, isn't he."

Restoring Old Mansions Can Be Rewarding

By ROBERT PETERSON
Folks who love beauty and tradition sometimes find new careers restoring old mansions. This may be a particularly rewarding and profitable pursuit for retired people who have the strength, know-how, and desire to do much of the work themselves.

A classic example concerns Myra Smith who used to teach French in a Chicago high school. When she was in her 40's she happened to take a vacation in Natchez, Miss., and fell in love with the stately old homes standing as remnants of the great plantation days.

On a later visit she heard that an old house and 75 acres of land near town were for sale at a bargain. She drove out for a look and was entranced. The house was terribly dilapidated, but it had a classic grandeur and perfection of proportion that fascinated her.

"It had been built in 1840 by a cotton broker," she told me, "and had enjoyed a number of years of glory prior to and following the Civil War. But then it fell on hard times and when I first saw it a truck farmer and his family were camping out in it — using most of the rooms for storing grain and sweet potatoes."

"A mysterious sense of destiny seized me and I felt I had to own it. So I inquired around, located the bank which owned the property, and made a down payment. I didn't have much money, but I was able to swing the deal and I've never regretted it. Later, when they put the new highway through one corner of my property, I sold 11 acres of land for just about what I paid for the entire estate."

"After buying it I had to return to my teaching chores in Chicago. But I came back every summer and repairs were done gradually. The galleries were sagging, plaster was coming down, rats had eaten through the baseboards, silverfish had devoured the wall paper and 200 panes of glass were needed.

"It was tremendously satisfying restoring the house and seeing it regain its former dignity. Then came the delightful task of decorating and furnishing it with appropriate Victorian antiques."

When Miss Smith reached 60 she retired from teaching in the Windy City and moved to her retirement home to complete its restoration. Since then her life has more or less revolved around her ante-bellum mansion. She has enjoyed studying the period in which it was built and has been hostess to thousands of visitors who stream through the house each spring during annual Pilgrimage Month.

"I'd say my retirement has worked out just as I hoped," she concluded, "and I think it's because I had a plan. By buying a home which became a project on which I could devote my physical and creative energies, and which I could share with others, my needs for housing, constructive activities and contacts with others were splendidly fulfilled."

Banks, Finance Firms Over-Assessed—Dunn

By Associated Press
State Banking Director Byron Dunn reported Wednesday he has discovered that Nebraska banks and savings and loan companies have been over-assessed for state examination for several years.

He said the over-assessment will total about $200,000 during the two-year period ending next June 30.

"When I took office, I received about a dozen complaints that the state examinations were costing too much," said Dunn, who was appointed to the banking directorship in March of this year.

"I investigated and found out that banks and savings and loan associations were being forced to pay for part of the overhead costs in the Banking Department office in addition to the costs of the examinations."

Dunn pointed to a state law which requires banks and savings and loan associations to pay a fee to finance the examination activities of the state department.

The rest of the costs of the department are to be financed with state general fund dollars, he said.

"About four or six years ago for some unknown reason the department's budget was changed to place much of the burden of financing the office on the banks and savings and loan companies by hiking the examiners' fee," said Dunn.

The banking director said his department's 1967-69 budget request reflects changes to conform with the law and will permit a reduction in examiners' fees if the budget is approved.

Whereas the department is expected to spend only $36,785 in general fund money for the current two-year period, its 1967-69 general fund request totals $236,858, Dunn noted.

Roads Dept. Must Share In Costs

The State Justice Department said Wednesday the State Roads Department must share in the costs of maintaining approaches to a state aid bridge as well as maintaining the bridge itself.

In an opinion for Boyd County Atty. W. P. Willis of Butte, the department said recent court decisions in other states have held that approaches are an integral part of bridges and thus are subject to the same statutes as are the bridges themselves.

Tax Votes Nov. 8

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

It can only be hoped that voters do some self-education before Nov. 8. If they do not, they could end up terribly confused on election day since they will face 17 issues on the state level and two at the local level for a total of 19 propositions. The voter could not possibly make an intelligent decision on all these issues in the few minutes he will be in the voting booth.

Any discussion of these issues is likely to start with taxes since this is by far the most important field of activity to be settled in November. There are a minimum of six ballot proposals having a direct bearing on the state's future tax position. Some of these issues will have a secondary effect upon the tax situation of other governmental subdivisions. Through the initiative petition process, voters will cast a ballot for or against proposition No. 301 which, if adopted, would prohibit the state from enacting a property tax. In our opinion, this is a poor proposal and should be defeated.

We do not favor the property tax but it can and undoubtedly will be replaced in other ways than by the force of 301. If this were approved and other tax proposals were all turned down, the state would have no tax system at all. The 1967 Legislature could provide one in the field of income or sales taxes but such action would be subject to a referendum movement and defeat.

This turn of events would leave the state helpless and it could easily happen. It is not so far-fetched as it might seem to consider that state government could find itself without any tax base, at all. This would be a long way from the joke it may appear to be at first glance.

Also, 301 flies in the face of a constitutional tax amendment to be voted on on Nov. 8. This is Amendment 14, stipulating that a minimum of 20 per cent of any state sales and/or income tax income must go to support of schools. But 14 also allows the state to stay in the property tax field for the purpose of capital improvement levies, special levies that now exist to the time of some 3 mills. If 301 and 14 passed, the state would have both a prohibition against and authorization for a property tax. Experts maintain that the issue receiving the highest vote would prevail but this is a pretty cloudy legal situation that need not be if 301 is defeated.

Too, there is some advantage to the state's remaining in the property tax field on a limited basis. In doing so, it could serve as a regulatory agency in the use of the property tax by all other subdivisions of government. This could be a substantial discouragement to poor assessment and taxation practices at lower levels of government. Even with the state in the property tax field on a limited basis, there would still be substantial property tax relief through elimination of the remainder of the state levy, about 9 to 10 mills, and the state aid to education from a sales and/or income tax.

Another major tax measure is proposition 300, on the ballot referendum petition. This is the income tax law passed by the last session of the Legislature. While this may not be the best of all income taxes, it is a highly acceptable one and would provide the state with the financial flexibility it must have if it is to meet the public needs that are piling up in just about every field of action.

If 300 is carried, the tax could always be improved by the Legislature and a sales tax could always be added later if this were the consensus of senators. And if 300 is defeated and the while tax issue ends up in the lap of the Legislature, senators could be influenced against the income tax, despite the fact that many people may have voted against it only on the basis of details, not broad principle.

Other tax measures are Amendments 5, 8 and 15, none of which is highly significant and all of which we would recommend. Amendment 5 permits the valuation of farm land for agricultural purposes only. The idea here is to give a break to farm land near suburban areas so its tax base is more in line with the income of the land rather than its potential sales value. Amendment 8 is rather in the category of housekeeping, permitting the state to use Internal Revenue Service provisions in adoption of any income tax. This is a simple matter of administrative economy and should have little opposition.

Amendment 15 would exempt life insurance and annuity insurance contracts from the personal property tax, doing the same for those who provide for their retirement in this way as is now done for those who have an interest in exempt pension funds. This amendment is a matter of equity for all people, not a privilege for insurance companies, and warrants voter support.

Falsehoods Told About Aid To Poor

WASHINGTON — In an obscure room in the Longworth building, two ghostwriters pound out political propaganda for the Republican congressional campaign committee.

They are Miss Pat Goldman and John Buckley, both hired by a small group of Republican congressmen including Bill Ayres of Akron, Ohio, Albert Quie of Denison, Minn., and Charles Goodell of Jamestown, N.Y.

From this office have come part of the weird stories about the anti-poverty program recently going the political rounds. Here are some of them:

1. That $80,000 and $76,351 were allocated for tennis courts in wealthy suburban Chevy Chase, Md. This was circulated in the weekly newsletter of Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., usually a reliable man. There just isn't any truth to it.
2. That $8,000 was spent by the Office of Equal Opportunity to fly 40 job corps workers from Hawaii to San Francisco to pick asparagus in the Bay area. This report was made by Rep. Charles Gubser, R-Calif. Again, it didn't happen. What did happen was that on May 7, 50 farm workers were flown from Honolulu to San Francisco to harvest crops, but the trip was privately paid for by California farmers.
3. Rep. Gubser also charged that $267,000 of anti-poverty money had been given the National Farm Workers Association when on strike.
4. That $290 of anti-poverty funds had been used to rent tuxedos so high school boys could attend a senior prom in Florida. This was stated by Rep. Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., it did not happen. No money was spent to rent tuxedos in Florida or anywhere else.
5. That anti-poverty money was spent to teach ballet to poor youngsters in Omaha, Neb. This was circulated by Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb. It is true that an application for such funds came from a group in Omaha, but the application was turned down. No such money was expended.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Molner: Please discuss skin cancer. I understand it grows very slowly, but if the little lumps are removed by surgery, will they come back?—A.L.T.

With a few rare exceptions, ALL cancers grow slowly. In the beginning, that is. But like forest fires, they gain speed as they go along — a n d f o r about the same reason.

To understand this, we have to understand what cancer is.

The body is made up of tiny, microscopic cells, just as an ocean is made up of drops of water.

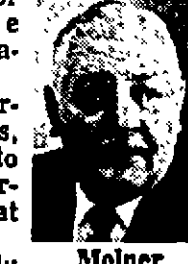

How does the body grow, in childhood? By having a cell divide into two cells, and the two into four, until there are enough.

Later in life, this process slows down, but does not stop. We are constantly replacing our bodies, cell by cell. When one cell dies, another cell splits in two and the two "daughter cells" then grow to full size. The total number, thus, remains the same.

But if, for reasons we do not understand but are trying to comprehend, the cells do not divide in this mathematical order, there is trouble. Let's say that a cell divides even though its next-door neighbor has not died off. Then we have an EXTRA cell. Something has gone wrong with its "dividing rate." And the TWO resulting cells also divide too soon. Their offspring divide again — and so on. It is a very small thing at first. It takes quite a time before the abnormally-multiplying cells add up to be even a lump. But in time they multiply to very large totals.

If we could prevent the first abnormal division from occurring, we could prevent cancer. Easy to say, but very hard to do!

We can't see that first cell divide! Nor even, perhaps, the first million or billion cells.

But when there are enough to form a lump (lumps can come from other causes, too) and we find the lump, if we then get rid of the entire colony of dividing cells, the abnormal process stops. We are then "cured of cancer."

What if we miss just one cell, or a few cells? Then the process starts up again. So, when we operate for cancer, we remove not only the lump itself, but a layer of surrounding, healthy tissue, to be sure of getting all the bad cells.

If we wait too long, the cells not only keep multiplying at that particular place, but a few break loose and start traveling to other parts of the body, and set up new colonies—or new cancers.

Skin cancer, being on the surface, is easy to see (and remove) before the cells have had a chance to move to new places. Inside the body, we don't find the cancer as soon. It may be in a vital organ, and you can't remove, say, a whole liver or pancreas.

But a skin cancer? Act in time, and you get rid of the whole thing. Even including the people who wait too long, and we still save 90-odd per cent of people with skin cancer. We could do better, with quicker action by patients who see suspicious signs.

Can the cancer "come back"? Not if we get it all out. Can a brand new cancer start, just as the first one did? Yes. It can but may not. If a new one starts, it is just as curable as the first one. And when you think of it, that's a very optimistic thought.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, who is 43, had a plantar wart on her foot. The doctor cut it out. Later she went to a skin specialist. He burned it out. On her last visit he said she has to go through the same thing again. What do you suggest, or where does she go from here? Is it cancer?—MRS. R. K.

No, a plantar wart is not cancer, but it can be one of the stubborn enemies of comfort. It is called a plantar wart because of its location, on the plantar portion of the foot, or the sole.

Sometimes these warts can be subdued readily, but the opposite is more often true, and it takes repeated treatments before you get rid of the trouble entirely.

Reason: The wart, due to a virus, tends to regrow, or a new one appears, until the virus has been thrown off.

Removal by surgery, or electrocautery (burning the wart out electrically) is the most effective form of treatment, so your daughter might best do as the specialist suggested.

My one word of caution is to take some simple measures to prevent spreading the virus. Careful foot washing, clean hose, and being careful not to walk around barefoot are the best rules.

Dear Dr. Molner: Th water here tastes so terrible that I (age 73) have been drinking a lot of caffeine-free coffee, with meals and at bedtime. This doesn't seem to bother my now-quiet ulcer. I also have smoked four or five cigars a day for 50 years. What is your opinion?—W. F. M.

Continue as you are and enjoy it.

Dear Dr. Molner: Do you think a bath every night is necessary? Does it cause dryness?—E. M.

No, I don't think it is necessary every night (depends on how active a person is, where he works, and so on; of course). In older people such frequent baths do dry the skin needlessly and thereby cause itching. Bath oils or lotions help.

Dr. Molner is interested in all his readers' questions, and whenever possible uses their questions in his columns. But because of the great number received daily, he regrets that he cannot answer individual letters.

Youth And Adults

Dr. Alan J. Pickering, a Nebraska University campus minister, gave a bleak picture of today's youth in its attitude toward the church and to adult society.

He told delegates to the current Central West Regional Meetings of the United Church of Christ that far too many students consider the religious establishment as a "collection of John Birchers, little old ladies in tennis shoes, pietistic fat bottoms, moral reactionaries, and bewildered old people, all held together by the Rev. I. M. Rat-Fink, D.D."

This is a dreadful indictment of a human kind because religious people are by far the best of the lot. They have a moral and spiritual code even though their behavior at times falls short. And the codes call for the best levels in the capacity of people.

It is not the fault of the faith if its practitioners fall short of it and the two should not be confused for if we discard our moral and spiritual goals we haven't much left to live for.

What is happening here, we fear, is a youth growing up in a revolutionary age, having lost the means of communicating with adults, whose training was pre-revolutionary. And we hope that Dr. Pickering is using his phrases more to bring a greater effort from the churches in a better focused manner against the problems of the world. We remind these doubting young people that the Christian faith also was a youth movement with earnestness to the death for a more just and sensible way of life. Perhaps today's youth are attempting to state half of the same aims without yet realizing it. But we remind them that emphasizing license and animal behavior are steps in the wrong direction.

Let us hasten to improve our communication.

Our Great Effort Is Military

As it has been in recent years, it is more so this year. More than 50 cents of the nation's tax dollar is going into warmaking and into military defense.

This is a change in the direction of modern America as much as is being forced by the education explosion, the feats in space and Keynesian economics.

The U.S. fiscal year started in July, but the Congress did not get to fixing the defense budget until recently. It was the largest single spending bill passed by the legislative body since 1944 when World War II was at its height. The present year's budget for defense amounted to $58 billion. The true demand will be measurably more, inasmuch as the budget only set aside $10.5 billion for the war in Viet Nam. And this will not cover the escalation that is going on in Southeast Asia. The war may not last another year but the escalation is already going on and will have to be paid out of supplemental appropriations.

But leaving a greater Viet Nam struggle out of it and adding such defense related items such as $1 billion for new military construction, another $1 billion for military assistance and lesser amounts for civil defense and other defense related activities, it is safe to say we will spend more than $60 billion on this one activity.

We are deeply committed to the military life, greatly in contrast to the past record of the country.

We would not say this was by design. Most of it was brought on by a turbulent world and the presence of real, dangerous and potent adversaries. And there is not much chance for it to end until the adversaries subside and world order is restored.

But nowhere is the unsettled world brought home to us more than in our cost of defense.

No Big Conflagration

A skirmish in one area of Lincoln VISTA program is going on currently with a good deal of public attention. But we can certify that as important as it may be to the several participants it carries no threat to the city's general war on poverty.

The skirmish, as we would fairly describe it, is a combination of a clash in personalities and a dispute over methods and practices in one area of VISTA activity, namely the service to ADC mothers in the Malone-Clinton area. In this particular service the VISTA volunteers visit the homes of dependent children to advise and aid the mothers. Such disputes frequently occur on what and how to do things and who is to be in command. They are rather common during the beginning stages of any large endeavor. The war on poverty is no exception. In due time these ructions will disappear. And a new criticism will show up, mainly in charges that the program has become institutionalized and inflexible.

VISTA is actually the local appearance of the national organization of the Office of Economic Opportunity. It is instituted through the local Lincoln Action Program which requests services according to community need. VISTA provides the professional workers and operates such activities as Head Start programs, Medicare alert, neighborhood aid, adult basic education, legal aid to the poor and the like. Service to ADC mothers is only one of its activities.

The poverty program is controversial. There are a sizeable number who question the advisability of a federal program to aid the poor in the fashion the program means to essay. There are others who believe that the poor should enjoy the slings of poverty without interruption. And there are some who stoutly support the OEO effort. To each we would say: Be patient and stand for common sense and justice.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Johnson Plugs For Asia Marshall Plan

WITH PRESIDENT JOHNSON IN THE PACIFIC—Of the No. 1 in this troupe there can be no question. The President of the United States, whether in Hawaii or New Zealand, is on stage 24 hours a day.

Nor of the No. 2 can there be much doubt. Mrs. Johnson with her unfailing warmth, her graciousness and the reputation she has won for conservation and the advancement of beauty in the environment is an unfailing counterpoise to the ceaseless movement of her husband. The miracle is the calm she seems to preserve in the eye of the storm.

These are the principals in the public view. A No. 3 at the level just below might well be Walt Whitman Rostow, the President's adviser on security affairs. While he is never seen, it is hardly stretching a point to say that he is frequently heard.

Insofar as this journey around the Pacific has a serious content other than the promotion of goodwill, it is supplied by Rostow. He is a brilliant theoretician with an extensive grounding in China and Asian policy in general. His principal work in economics has had to do with the underdeveloped countries and the takeoff point when with sufficient infusion of outside aid they begin to increase production at a rate hitherto considered impossible.

But, as important as Rostow's intellectual contribution is his temperament, which in a striking way complements that of the President. Rostow is a practicing optimist. His unfailing, and many would say uncritical, conviction that America is following the right course in Asia reinforces the President's own zeal. As he sits out of the line of view listening to the President deliver a speech, Rostow's face has the look of the happy collaborator who has found a commitment to action which, as a professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he surely could never have dreamed of.

It would be an oversimplification to say that what the President proposes as he moves from country to country is a Marshall Plan for Asia. But that is what many Asians draw from the words of hope and cheer that he spreads with his unflagging and, it would seem, unquenchable and unrestrained energy.

All this is splendid and in the melting pot—the true melting pot of Asian peoples—in Hawaii it seems relevant. Hawaii the 50th state is enjoying a phenomenal boom that owes a lot to the Viet Nam war as troops, ships, all the complex material of modern war move in and out of Honolulu's great installations. Up to perhaps half of the state's economy derives from the federal treasury in one way or another.

But whether these high aims have any relevance to the great impoverished mass of Asia is questionable. This is where equating Europe and the postwar American effort that renewed that continent with the vastly different circumstances of Asia seems a distortion of history.

One-Eyed Jack

Lincoln, Neb.

There is one thing absolutely certain about a one-eyed jack — eventually he will show the other side of his face. Such is the case with Clair Callan, who says he gets things done for Nebraska.

Now we learn that he has voted with the administration 92% of the time during the past year. Thus we know the things he had done for Nebraska and for the nation — wickedly spiraling inflation, tight money to create serious job shortages for the building industries, rent subsidies whether we need them or not.

Let us send a man of integrity to Washington — a man like the rest of us — Bob Denney.

DORIS LINK

Big Problem

Lincoln, Neb.

The recent death of a young girl following an episode of drinking illustrates the unfortunate aftermath of a poor law passed by the Legislature in an effort to repress rather than alleviate a problem.

It appears to me to be a fallacy that "prohibition" will be any more successful in the age group 10-21 than it was in older groups. Does it take less maturity to drink than to hold a job, to be married, or to engage in a war? I doubt that anyone in this age group who wishes to will be kept from drinking by the present law. I do not doubt that they will drink more surreptitiously, will drink under less desirable supervision, or will consume whatever is available, as in the recent example. The law makes it difficult to do otherwise. Examine the "magic" age of 21. Would it not be better to extend prohibition to age 22 or 26 — or 30? I find it difficult to believe that anyone becomes suddenly a responsible imbibor overnight on attaining majority. The state might consider giving a "drinker's license"—only after passing a "drinker's test," of course.

One might suggest that parents who wish to try to teach in their presence the desirability of moderation. But this would also be illegal insofar as it was not confined to their "permanent place of residence"—an afterthought apparently added in an effort to allow some freedom of choice to remain with the parents.

Intoxication has always been a problem and shows no signs of ceasing to be so. It is too complex a problem for such a "simple" solution as Nebraska has attempted to devise for this age group. Other states have already made more thoughtful approaches. Human nature will not change regardless of how hard the state, through its selected officials, tries to ignore the fact in the name of expediency or morality. Nebraska would do well to give more reasonable consideration to the question. Problems of this magnitude will not be solved by attempts at prohibition, repression, or intellectual denial.

Crops Are Good

Hastings, Neb.

Senator Roman Hruska, in reporting a statement made by another, said: "The farm income of the past five years was the lowest ever recorded." Nebraska farmers know better than that because hundreds of thousands of them lost their farms during the recession of the early 1920's during the GOP administration of President Harding, and in the early 1930's during the GOP administration of President Hoover, when the agricultural economy collapsed.

One should expect Senator Hruska to make more truthful statements about Nebraska's economy. Someone should tell him that in the 1950's, during the GOP administration of President Eisenhower, Nebraska cattle feeders reported a loss of $150 per head on their fat cattle. Is there a GOP member in the 89th Congress who can produce such an appalling loss during a Democratic administration in the past 30 years?

Livestock made Nebraska and livestock will continue to be a very important industry in connection with our economy. Senator Hruska's dismal report is in sharp conflict with the reports of farmers who are rejoicing over the "miracle crops" of 1965.

A Correction

Lincoln, Neb.

It was stated in The Star's letter column that Mr. Tiemann spent in excess of $8,000 to win the primary. Please correct that statement. The amount was over $68,000. I have a clipping from The Star verifying this. "Carry On" is so right about Mr. Sorensen for governor.

Object Struck Agena 8

Washington (AP)—A tiny object whizzing through space struck the Agena 8 spacecraft, in orbit 240 miles above the earth, hard enough to leave a visible dent.

James E. Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, reported this incident of last summer in accepting the Robert J. Collier Trophy Wednesday for himself and his former deputy administrator, the late Dr. Hugh L. Dryden.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey presented the trophy honoring the two men as leaders of the Project Gemini space team.

In an acceptance talk, Webb recounted some hitherto undisclosed achievements of the Gemini program.

"When an astronaut brought back a micrometeoroid experiment from an Agena launch vehicle — four months after it was put in orbit — we found a micrometeoroid impact crater large enough to be seen with the naked eye," Webb said.

"The Gemini 9 and 10 micrometeoroid experiments were very successful. Now we have a better understanding of how many and what kinds of micrometeoroids we can expect to hit a manned craft."

Webb did not elaborate on the Agena dent damage.

His reference, however, was to the recovery by Astronaut Michael Collins, during his Gemini 10 space walk July 20, of a micrometeoroid plate that had been attached to the side of the still-in-orbit Agena rocket that had launched Gemini 8 four months previously.

★ ★ ★ Surveyor 1 Revival Try Doesn't Work

Pasadena, Calif. (UPI) — A longshot effort to have America's Surveyor 1 spacecraft take additional pictures of the lunar terrain was unsuccessful, it was announced Wednesday.

Technicians at California Institute of Technology's Jet Propulsion Laboratory here processed tapes transmitted by the mooncraft and found no pictures.

"They were unable to find any video data on the tapes," a JPL spokesman said. "We still don't know what this means and whether Surveyor might still be alive."

Surveyor, which soft-landed on the moon June 1 and returned more than 11,000 clear, closeup photographs of the lunar surface, was considered technically dead in mid-July.

The JPL spokesman said it was conceivable another attempt might be made in early November to re-establish communications with Surveyor.

★ ★ ★ Manned Apollo Formally Okayed For Next Shot

Washington (AP)—The National Aeronautics and Space Administration decided formally Wednesday that the next launch of an Apollo spacecraft by a Saturn booster will be a manned mission.

The decision was made after a meeting here last week of the agency's Design Certification Review Board.

No launch date has yet been set, but it probably will be in December.

Astronauts Virgil Grissom, Edward White and Roger Chaffee have been assigned as the crew for the first manned Apollo flight.

The next Apollo-Saturn launch some months ago was planned as an unmanned test. However, space program successes have advanced the schedule, and for several weeks it had been considered likely that this would be a manned shot. Wednesday's decision made it official.

France To Thank U.S.

Paris (AP)—France plans to spend $80,000 next year marking the 50th anniversary of the American entry into World War I. Veterans minister Alexandre Sanguinetti told the National Assembly the 1917 dates to be commemorated include: April 5—U.S. declaration of war; June 13—arrival of Gen. John J. Pershing in Boulogne; June 26—landing of the first U.S. infantry division at Saint Nazaire; July 3—arrival of the first

Red Cross Bank Ends Free Gamma Globulin

The American Red Cross blood bank Wednesday advised Nebraska a rarely-used blood plasma will no longer be available for free distribution to the states because of a high demand in Viet Nam.

Dr. E. A. Rogers, state health director, explained that gamma globulin has a high disease-resisting quality and is particularly effective against hepatitis, a health problem in Southeast Asia. He said Nebraska physicians will be advised of the Red Cross action through the State Medical Association. "It may work a hardship on some patients for a while because it is expensive to buy," Dr. Rogers said. In his letter to the Nebraska Health Department, Dr. Allan Chrisman, acting director of the Red Cross blood bank, said the blood plasma will still be available for free distribution in disasters, epidemics and approved research. The Red Cross blood bank distributed 1,116,150 free units of gamma globulin in the year ended last June 30. Nebraska has received several thousand milliliters annually, Dr. Rogers said. What's New in Lincoln. Illustrated feature stories in the "Sunday Journal and Star" keep you informed.

Suit Filed In County Road Mishap

Dale E. Flisser, through his father Anton Flisser, filed a $250,000 damage suit in Lancaster District Court Wednesday against Dennis Plambeck in connection with a Nov. 7, 1965, accident. The plaintiffs allege that 18-year-old Dale was a passenger in a car driven by the defendant when the car went out of control about 2.6 miles west of Hallam on a county road. The petition contends Plambeck was negligent and as a result of the accident young Flisser was permanently paralyzed from the neck down.

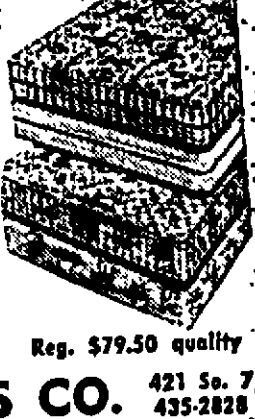

Denver, Colo. (AP) — If you ever have gotten a traffic ticket, perhaps you classify this as good news: The Denver Police Department reported termites had a feast on 11 cartons of unused traffic tickets, ruining 1,725 of them. This is about a two-month supply.

Lincoln Women Continue Organizing Boycott

Lincoln women, claiming to be "fed up with high prices," continued to organize Wednesday a boycott program patterned after housewives for lower food prices movements in other cities.

Grocers in Lincoln agreed that food prices were high, but generally credited it to widespread inflation and were dubious that a boycott could substantially lower prices.

Heading the committee is Mrs. Leroy (Pat) Head of 2609 S. 11th, who began phoning friends and neighbors Monday night after hearing about similar boycotts across the nation.

Describing the response to her idea as "better than I expected," Mrs. Head feels that a successful boycott would have to involve 50 to 75% of the grocery buyers in Lincoln.

"Though we haven't decided point-blank what we want," Mrs. Head said, "I think most of us feel that when food becomes a luxury, then prices are too high."

Arts Center Financing Proposal Is Presented

By BOB SCHREFF
Star Staff Writer

A proposal to finance a combination performing arts center and area recreation center in Woods Park was presented to the City Parks and Recreation Advisory Board Wednesday.

Lincoln Community Playhouse Foundation representatives Larry Enersen and Tom Carroll suggested the financing be done "through a bond issue authorized by public referendum for no less than one-half the total estimated cost of $2 million."

The remainder could be raised from solicitation of foundations and other private interests and organizations, they said.

More Information

The park board had requested in June more information from the foundation concerning financing, management and use of the proposed center.

No action was taken by the board. Acting chairman William Haydon said Wednesday's appearance by the foundation was "just a feed-back of information to us." The board will make recommendation "after our subcommittee sees what they want in the way of a recreation area," he added.

The subcommittee has scheduled visits to recreation centers in York, Wichita, Kan., and Oklahoma City, Okla., within the next month. Haydon said that ideas gained on those trips, plus further discussion with the playhouse foundation might result in a park board recommendation to the City Council in December.

The foundation has proposed a development at Woods Park which would house an area recreation center, a 400-seat theatre and a music hall seating a minimum of 2,000.

Unprecedented

"A plan of the scope we are proposing for Lincoln is unprecedented so far as we can discover," Carroll said.

In answer to other questions posed by the park board, Carroll and Enersen replied:

—The facility would need an annual budget of approximately $30,000 to cover salaries, utilities, maintenance and operation costs.

—The city parks and recreation department would manage the performing arts area.

—The music hall would be available for recreation department uses when not being used for actual performances by the Lincoln Symphony or the Broadway Theatre League.

—New parking areas to be constructed plus existing ones would accommodate approximately 1,500 people.

It was also suggested that space be added for a state headquarters for the Nebraska Arts Council, "which would enhance the possibility of attracting foundation funds and a Supplementary Education grant."

NU Specialist Puts Losses At $10 Million In Loup Basin

Last summer's Loup River basin flood caused an estimated economic loss of $10 million, a University of Nebraska official reported Wednesday.

Deon D. Axthelm, extension water resource specialist, based his estimate on figures compiled by county agricultural disaster committees.

He said 60% of the damage resulted in urban areas and 40% on the farms.

Axthelm said the flooding underscores the need for flood plain regulation, especially in cities.

"Flood plain regulations may not have helped the farmer in the loup basin but regulation of the use of the flood plain for buildings and properties in the urban areas could have prevented extensive losses," he said. "Flood plain regulations should be considered as potential means of reducing future flood losses."

Alert Issued For Apparent Plane Stealer

Waterloo, Iowa (UPI) — A Midwest alert was issued Wednesday for an apparent plane stealer.

Federal and state authorities said a man used a stolen credit card to rent the plane in Waterloo Sunday and no trace has been seen since either the plane or the man.

A man with a credit card issued to William Johnson, Omaha, rented the small single-engine plane from Neiderhouser Airways at the Waterloo airport and said he planned to fly to Omaha.

However, the plane never landed at Omaha and FBI agents discovered that the credit card had been stolen. The Cessna 140 plane was painted red and white.

Walker Pleads Guilty To Charge, Sentencing Set

Pender (U) — Sentencing has been set for Tuesday for Richard T. Walker, 39, of Winnebago, who has pleaded guilty to a charge of second degree murder.

Walker entered a plea of innocent Monday before District Judge John E. Newton of Ponca Monday on a charge of first degree murder.

The charge of second degree murder was filed Tuesday following opening statements of attorneys at the youth's trial. The guilty plea to the new charge was filed at that time.

Walker was charged in connection with the June 21 stabbing of Mrs. Bertha Chamberlain, 60, Winnebago motel operator. The youth was arrested at his home a short time after the woman's body was discovered in her home.

Hospital Expects Raise In Rates

Scottsbluff (U) — Max Coppum, administrator of the West Nebraska General Hospital, says the hospital probably will raise its rates by Jan. 1.

The increases will need board of directors approval, but Coppum says they probably will amount to about $2 per room per day.

He said the increase was prompted by three things:

—The requirement that hospitals pay federal minimum wages beginning Feb. 1, 1967.

—Increasing salaries for nurses.

—The Medicare program.

One spokesman for a large supermarket chain in Lincoln felt that, if the boycott were effective enough to lower prices, it would curtail most of the "gimmicks, trading stamps, and games" employed by the supermarkets in their promotion.

"If it's going to come to Lincoln," he said, "stores can't lower their prices and still keep spending large sums of money on trading stamps, games and contests."

He pointed out that, although the stamps and gimmicks may offer the customer a chance to reclaim about three or four cents on the dollar, it also raises the price of the food.

Cuts For Gimmicks

"The boycott would hurt everyone, sure," he said, "but the biggest cuts would come from those stores with special gimmicks."

"Food prices are a sore spot, of course," he said, "but the federal government released figures some time ago which indicated that the American family is spending actually a smaller percentage of their income on food today than they were before."

Though food prices are higher today, he pointed out that the American family is spending more on luxury items such as color TV, new cars, bowling, motorbats and other expensive diversions."

Another store manager, however, denounced the pending boycott as "ridiculous."

"Everything is on its way up today," he said. "There's no way to go but up."

"I'm paying my employees more, and the people who are thinking about boycotting are getting paid more. I don't see any way that I could lower my prices."

"Unless they start letting me buy things cheaper," he said, "I don't see how I can sell them at any less."

Gering Women To Fight Prices

Gering (U) — Albert Hamburg, 34, a Gering printer, said Wednesday a group of 14 housewives is passing out handbills calling for action aimed at lower food prices.

Hamburg said that so far 2,000 handbills have been distributed asking Scottsbluff and Gering housewives to join in an organized boycott against two major food chain stores in the two cities.

Hamburg indicated he is directing the effort.

British Tax Bite

London (UPI) — Taxes on tobacco, alcoholic beverages and gasoline account for more than half the total revenue

Forest Service Contracts Let

Denver—Road, trail and bridge contracts totaling $3.22 million have been let by the Rocky Mountain Region of the U.S. Forest Service since Jan. 1, regional forester D. S. Nordwall reported.

The contracts, including $131,700 in Nebraska, covered construction, improvement and maintenance of nearly 235 miles of national forest roads and trails and 18 bridges.

Strauss Says Business Aware Of Social Responsibilities

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

Business is becoming increasingly aware of its social responsibilities, Willis A. Strauss told some 150 Lincoln business and educational leaders meeting on Wednesday.

The Chamber of Commerce education committee sponsors the annual event.

"Today's managers do not believe the sole purpose of business is making products," the president and chairman of the board of Northern Natural Gas Co. said.

Strauss said that the business and education communities both are "expressions of social goals of our society." Neither can "stand alone; our activities are too interlocking," he emphasized.

The Lincolnites in attendance were told that the "dependence of business on schools to develop people is growing at an unprecedented rate."

Business, said Strauss, realizes that education is a continuing process.

The Northern Natural president indicated that the educational community "has done a better job of creating a climate of understanding between the two than has business." However, he also pointed out that the educational community must be encouraged to become aware of business products and needs.

In his remarks Strauss said he was inclined to think that the business community's financial support for education is "surprisingly low."

Also addressing the Lincolnites were heads of the three institutions of higher education in the Capitol City: Dr. Vance Rogers, president of Nebraska Wesleyan University, Dr. Laurence Downing, director of student counseling at Union College, and Dr. Clifford Hardin, chancellor of the University of Nebraska.

Hardin told the group that NU had grown in size as much in the last seven years as in the preceding 90 years. However, he declared, financial support has not kept pace with the increased enrollment and responsibility.

Detailing needs of the school as reflected by the proposed budget, Hardin pointed out that the cost per student is "lower today" than in 1960. It is within a few cents of the cost per student in 1955, he observed.

The higher cost of instruction, the chancellor explained, has had to be absorbed with increasing teaching loads, thinning secretarial and clerical help and getting by with less than adequate equipment and facilities.

Watershed May Join University In Study Of Branched Oak Impact

By BOB SCHREFF
Star Staff Writer

The Salt Valley Watershed District might participate in a University of Nebraska study to determine the economic impact of the Branched Oak Reservoir on surrounding urban and rural communities.

District directors appeared enthusiastically Wednesday about the possibilities of the study, which could be used as a yardstick to measure as well the change in opinion and farming operations of farmers displaced by governmental efforts to further flood control and conservation goals.

The directors authorized the district executive committee to commit Salt Valley to 50% financial participation in the study after the proposal is given further consideration.

The study would be comprised of two parts: Phase I, a two year effort to obtain "benchmark" data, costing an estimated $6,400, and Phase II, lasting until 1971, the actual determination of the economic and social impact of the reservoir on the Lincoln - Raymond - Malcolm area.

The study would be a way to obtain information "not being duplicated elsewhere," president Otto Liebers told the board. Its results could be applied to other similar local and federal projects, he declared.

Other Salt Valley business: —Jim Good, corps project engineer, reported that work on the branched oak embankment is four% behind schedule. "Weather permitting, we hope to get it up to design elevation," he said.

—The board formally approved the plans and specifications for the second phase Salt Creek channel improvement project from 14th St. to Superior. The approval is a federal requirement.

Corps officials said the project is ready for bidding.

—Discussion of Salt Valley's possible financial participation in a transportation study for the county and adjoining areas was deferred.

Omaha School Board Leader Leaving Town

Omaha — George F. McCormick, president of the Omaha School Board, said Wednesday he will be leaving Omaha early in 1967.

McCormick, regional supervisor for Dial Finance Company, is being transferred to become general supervisor in the company's Atlanta, Ga., division.

McCormick said that he had offered his immediate resignation from the board. But he said the board asked that he complete his term as president, which ends in December, and remain on the board until he moves.

The board will then appoint an interim replacement until the next regularly scheduled election.

McCormick has served on the school board for six years.

Lincoln Teacher Exhibiting Art In Nebraska City

Californian, 18, Released After FDA Questioning

A California youth held in connection with an alleged federal drug law violation concerning the use of LSD was released Wednesday morning after talking with a representative of the U. S. Food and Drug Administration.

The 20-year-old was released because of a lack of evidence, Inspector Robert Sawdon of the Lincoln Police explained. Nebraska has no laws concerning the use of LSD and there was no federal complaint made.

Hays Charges HUAC Witness Given $1,000

Washington (AP)—Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, charged on the House floor Wednesday night that a witness at last August's tumultuous hearings of the House Un-American Activities Committee was paid $1,000 by Congress after he testified.

Hays said records of the House Administration Committee show that Phillip Abbott Luce, one of three "friendly" witnesses during the hearings on a bill aimed at curbing antiwar demonstrations, was paid that amount Aug. 22, 1966.

"He got $1,000 from the Congress of the United States," Hays told the House during debate on a bill to create a House Ethics Committee.

The matter came up first Tuesday night while the House was considering contempt citations against three persons who refused to testify in another HUAC investigation.

At that time, Chairman Edwin E. Willis, D-La., said, "No person has ever been paid for testifying before the committee."

But later in the debate Willis said HUAC staff director Francis J. McNamara told him some persons who testified as witnesses before the committee subsequently were paid consultants' fees by the committee.

Hays said he checked through records of a House administration subcommittee he heads which processes all vouchers for payment of House employees.

The August hearings, which related to Rep. Joe R. Pool's bill to slap stiff penalties on Americans who aid the Viet Cong or North Vietnamese, lasted from Aug. 16 to Aug. 19.

Luce, a former member of the pro-communist Progressive Labor Movement who later defected, testified Aug. 16—six days before the date Hays said he was paid $1,000.

Hays said records show the $1,000 payment to Luce was listed as a consultant's fee.

Neither Willis nor Pool was present when Hays made his assertions and they were not immediately available for comment.

Hays brought the matter up in the course of a speech denouncing the proposed ethics committee as a "self-immolation" group for congressmen. He said charges made against any congressman would be remembered long after they were disproved.

Conferees Agree On Campaign Financing

Washington (AP)—Senate-House conferees agreed Wednesday night on a permanent program of government financing of presidential campaigns out of voluntary contributions by income taxpayers.

The plan, a revised version of a proposal advanced for some time by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., could make $30 million available to both the Democratic and Republican Parties in the 1968 election.

Some of the Senate conferees expressed great surprise that the provision was accepted by the House delegation.

It was one of 25 extraneous amendments tacked onto an administration tax bill by the Senate last week.

Curbing Influence

Long told reporters his presidential campaign financing plan would "do more than anything we could devise to remove improper influence from government."

"It will mean that a president will enter the White House under obligation only to the individual citizens and not to wealthy contributors, corporations or labor unions who may have financed his campaign."

The plan would work this way:

A presidential election campaign fund would be set up to which each taxpayer could voluntarily contribute $1 a year—$2 for a man and wife—if he stated on his tax return that he wanted the sum to go for this purpose.

Reimbursement

A major party—defined as one which polled 15 million votes in the preceding election—could be reimbursed for its campaign expenses out of this fund. This would mean Democratic and Republican for now.

The ceiling on such reimbursement would be obtained by multiplying the number of votes cast in the preceding election by $1, subtracting $10 million, and dividing by two.

Since about 70 million votes were cast in the 1964 Johnson-Goldwater race, this would mean a total of $60 million in the fund for the 1968 campaign, with each major party entitled to half.

The expenditures would be audited by the U.S. comptroller general, who is a watchdog over all government spending. He would be assisted by a bipartisan advisory board.

1968 Start

The first payments into the fund would be made in 1968 by a checkoff on 1967 tax returns due in April 1968.

If the fund did not contain enough money to pay the full entitlement in 1968, the shortage could be made up out of the fund in future years.

Once the plan was in full operation, there would be four years to build up the fund for the next election. Any surplus would revert to the treasury.

The fund potential would be about $100 million a year since there are 65 million tax returns annually, about 35 million of them joint returns filed by couples.

A minor political party would be allowed to get payments if it received 5 million votes in the preceding election. It would be limited to $1 of reimbursement for expenses for each vote in excess of 5 million votes that its candidate received.

Penny Worth $16.80

London — Only 120,000 English pennies were made with a 1951 date. In most other years the Royal Mint makes 40 million. As a result, the 1951 penny is worth about $16.80.

Mystified Shoppers Get Help, As Solons OK Label Bill

Washington (AP)—Congress tried to ease the arithmetic problem for price-conscious shoppers Wednesday by passing a packaging and labeling bill.

It also pushed nearer final decisions such items as funds for the fight against poverty and aid to education — part of President Johnson's blueprint for a Great Society — in hopes of getting through by Saturday at the latest.

The Senate approved allocation of $6.1 billion in aid for grade and high schools for two more years. This is about $1.7 billion more than Johnson asked.

Segregation Bar

The measure contains a provision allowing the education commissioner to hold up funds for schools still segregated, but provides a hearing must be held within 60 days after announcement of the deferral. The House, which has voted to require a formal hearing before deferral, must approve the measure.

A possible battle between the Senate and House looms over trade with communist-bloc nations. The House has voted against the administration's plan to expand trade with Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria. The Senate Appropriations Committee voted to leave decisions on the trade question to the President.

The Senate approved the packaging and labeling bill by voice vote, thus sending it to the White House.

It provides for increased government regulations on the labeling and packaging of food, drugs, cosmetics and household supplies. It calls for more uniformity in labeling packages and for voluntary moves toward uniformity in packaging.

Pork Barrel

The House passed a bill to authorize construction of navigation, beach erosion and flood control projects with an estimated federal cost of about $613 million. The Senate has approved an $821 million program.

The Senate approved a bill sent to the House a bill to permit treatment instead of jail for narcotics addicts not charged with crimes of violence.

Other bills sent to the white house:

—Safety at sea: To require operators of both foreign and domestic passenger ships to meet new safety standards if they pick up American travelers in U.S. ports. The House gave final approval.

—Charter buses: To require future applicants for bus operating authority to show there is a need for new charter service. Such charter service now is automatic with approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission of a regular route.

Guidelines Opposed In South

Atlanta, Ga. (AP)—New federal school desegregation guidelines, recently under fire in Congress, have triggered growing election-year opposition in the South.

The guidelines put out by the Office of Education seek to set desegregation requirements for receipt of federal funds. Basically, the objective is progress in classroom and faculty integration.

While a variety of plans are accepted, the guidelines do not spell out minimums but cite examples of minimal progress. Examples have included Negro transfer percentages of 6, 8 or 10% for previously white schools. The guidelines provide federal officials with a means of evaluating progress in ending dual school systems.

The guidelines came out last March in an effort to show the way for local school officials to comply with the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

The act was reluctantly but generally accepted by a large majority of Southern school officials, and an Associated Press survey last year indicated the 1964 law produced more school desegregation than any of the laws or court decisions of the preceding decade.

'Go Beyond'
But since the issuance of the regulations there have been complaints that the guidelines go beyond the 1964 act or demand too much too soon.

In Georgia, Supt. Ed Bailey of Sumter County said his school system recognized the 1964 act as law and accepted it. "But we feel the guidelines go further than requirements of the law," he said. "We have done everything to fulfill the freedom-of-choice requirements."

The Sumter system refused to comply with the guidelines and faced loss of about $230,000 in federal aid.

Confusion over guidelines and what is or isn't acceptable together with apparent breakdowns in communications between local and federal authorities have contributed to the rising complaints — aimed mostly at Commissioner of Education Harold Howe II.

Supt. Alvin Mikell of Levy County, Fla., said he was told by Dr. Stanley Kruger, area representative for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, that the county's staff desegregation plans were adequate. But, said Mikell, a month later, he got a letter from Howe saying the plans were inadequate.

Force Charged
A lawsuit brought by former Lt. Gov. Garland T. Byrd of Georgia charged that federal officials were trying to force Negro pupils in one county to transfer against their wishes. A federal judge ruled this could not be required; the Department of Justice agreed and its attorney said the dispute resulted from an apparent misunderstanding of remarks Kruger had made.

Gov. Mills E. Godwin Jr. of Virginia complained that many school systems had submitted plans to HEW in the spring and never got replies. Then in August, Godwin said, review teams told the systems certain changes had to be made in their plans.

Earlier this month Congress prohibited any federal requirement for busing school children to overcome racial balance as a requirement to receiving federal aid.

The debate on the measure showed considerable criticism of Howe, with some congressman calling him a "social quack" and the "education commissar" for his efforts to speed up desegregation in the South.

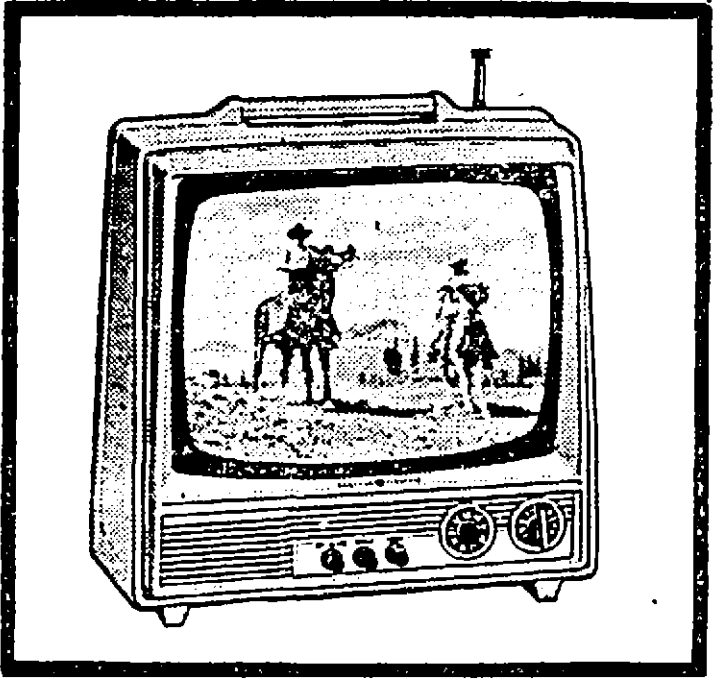

Political Issue
Guidelines have become political issues in gubernatorial races in Georgia, Alabama, South Carolina and Arkansas. Democratic Gov. Robert E. McNair of South Carolina, running for re-election, has put the state's legal resources behind a school district's court challenge of the guidelines.

Alabama's legislature enacted a law declaring the guidelines illegal and voiding compliance agreements by school districts in the state. Gov. George C. Wallace, who pushed through the law, has labeled the guidelines "a blueprint devised by socialists," with the "unqualified, 100% support of the Communist

Opportunity Panel Acts In 15 Cases

The Nebraska Equal Employment Opportunity Commission reported Wednesday it was actively involved in 15 cases during its first year of operation.

Ten of these were based on alleged sex discrimination and five on race, the group advised Governor Morrison.

All other particulars are, by law, confidential.

According to R. D. Andersen of Lincoln, chairman, eight alleged cases of discrimination were referred to the commission by the federal government. The other seven arose from individual complaints.

In five instances, he added, the case was either dropped by the complainant or it was determined the commission had no jurisdiction.

Andersen said the commission initiated no legal actions during its first year.

"We have found conflicts in the state and federal government on sex discrimination and our authority and responsibility," he said.

The commission was created by the 1965 Legislature. The bill proposing the body was sponsored by Sen. Edward R. Danner of Omaha, the Unicameral's only Negro member.

Certificates Of Election Redesigned

The new certificates of election that will be issued by Secretary of State Frank Marsh's office after the Nov. 8 election, have been printed in the state's official colors—blue and gold.

Marsh said Wednesday the certificate was redesigned after the supply of the older black-and-white certificate became exhausted.

Several hundred will be issued to elected officials, ranging from the governor down to elected board members of public power districts, soil and water districts and reclamation districts.

Marsh said the new certificate has been "simplified," and the state seal imprinted in blue and gold has replaced the state capitol building on the certificate.

Attesting signatures on the certificate will be the governor and secretary of state as ex-officio chairman and secretary of the official state canvassing board.

Morrison Aide Cites Curtis Vote Against Funds

L. Clark McCabe, Governor Morrison's Senate campaign coordinator, said Wednesday universities in Lincoln will get $3,194,887 this year from a bill that Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., voted against.

"In view of this and of his entire voting record on educational programs, I don't see how any concerned resident of Lincoln could support Carl Curtis," McCabe, a Lincoln businessman, said.

McCabe referred to Curtis' vote against Title One of the Higher Education Facilities Act, passed in 1963. The Senate passed the measure, 60-19.

McCabe said the University of Nebraska has received $2,778,227 and Nebraska Wesleyan University, $416,666, under the act.

One-Story Home Is 'Considerably' Damaged By Fire

State Drivers Need Winter Precautions

... PATROL CAPTAIN WARNS

By JIM STEVENSON
Star Staff Writer

With winter approaching, motorists on Nebraska highways are cautioned to take the necessary measures for survival in case of disaster during the cold weather.

When blizzard conditions struck last spring, 21 Nebraskans lost their lives, largely because they weren't prepared for such an emergency.

"If you get stuck in a blizzard, you're stuck," said Capt. E. P. Schroeder of the Nebraska Safety Patrol. "It's better to stay in the car than to try to reach other shelter on foot."

Many motorists, after finding themselves trapped in a snowbank, panic and try to walk for help or shelter. But disorientation occurs quickly in the blinding and swirling snow.

Steps From Safety

Several of the spring blizzard's victims fell prey to the cold only steps away from safety, Capt. Schroeder pointed out.

But despite the frightening statistics of the tragedy last spring, Capt. Schroeder points out that blizzard deaths are not usually a major problem during Nebraska winters.

Prior to last spring, only isolated deaths had been reported during the winters since 1949, when a blizzard killed 20 Nebraskans. The Blizzard of '88, which has become almost legendary, reportedly took the lives of over 200.

"But there's always a possibility of blizzard deaths as long as people are uninformed of weather and road conditions," Capt. Schroeder said.

The greatest loss of life in last spring's blizzard, he said, was due to asphyxiation rather than the cold. "Even late model cars can become so plastered with snow and ice that carbon monoxide is drawn into the car," he said.

Open Window

Even if the car is running, a window on the downwind side of the car should be lowered for fresh air.

The Safety Patrol also recommends carrying along several blankets to wrap up in, though there have been instances of people surviving by wrapping up in newspapers.

One person trapped in the blizzard last March even took the cover off the back seat and wrapped up in the cotton padding.

Another safety measure is a gallon can containing candles and matches. "A lighted candle in a gallon can between your feet puts out a surprising amount of heat," Capt. Schroeder pointed out.

It's also practical to include a small stock of high-calorie, non-perishable food. A radio, a shovel, a flashlight, a fire extinguisher, a tow chain, and a plastic scraper could also come in handy.

The U.S. Department of Commerce recommends two-way radios and a ball of heavy twine to mark the route to shelter.

Common Sense Best

But the principal guidelines are only common sense. When trapped — avoid panic, stay in the vehicle, and try to keep warm.

Capt. Schroeder advises occupants of a stalled car to try to exercise when possible, even if it is only climbing from the front seat into the back. "And if you're trapped for any length of time, and you want to sleep," he said, "it's safest to sleep in shifts."

The easiest way to survive a blizzard, however, is to stay off the roads in the first place. Before any trip, the driver should be aware of both road conditions and weather forecasts.

Above all, remember that, in the Great Plains area, the blizzard is the greatest potential killer that man has to contend with.

As Capt. Schroeder said, "You should always have a healthy respect for the fury of a Nebraska snowstorm."

Interstate Section To Be Opened

State Engineer John Hossack announced Wednesday that the Interstate Highway between Beaver Crossing and Henderson will be opened permanently Friday morning.

"We want to give Boulder-bound football traffic as much use of the interstate route as possible," he said.

However, Hossack cautioned that some contractor's equipment will still be in the area and urged drivers to exercise caution.

Both east and west traffic may use the Henderson interchange. The section between Henderson and Giltner will remain closed, and traffic must still use U.S. 34 and Highway 2 between these points.

Mrs. Lefler Dies At 104 In Lincoln

Mrs. Nettie Lefler, mother of retired Lincoln educator Millard C. Lefler, died in Lincoln Wednesday at the age of 104.

Born in Mount Pleasant, Iowa, on April 20th, 1862, Mrs. Lefler traveled to Virginia

City, Nev., with her parents when she was five.

After a short time the family returned to Mount Pleasant, then came to Nebraska and homesteaded near Gretna.

She married William Lefler in 1882. He died in 1940.

Mrs. Lefler is survived by two sons, Dr. Millard C. Lefler and Harry Lefler, and a daughter, Mrs. Robert Wilson, all of Lincoln.

Dr. Lefler served as Lincoln School Superintendent from 1920 until his retirement in 1948.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

Subandrio Trial Recessed Week

Jakarta, Indonesia (AP)—The military court trying ex-Foreign Minister Subandrio in Jakarta on charges of treason and corruption recessed Wednesday until next Tuesday, when it will hand down a verdict.

Facing a death penalty on charges that include complicity in the abortive communist coup last Oct. 1, Subandrio in a plea before the recess appealed for a verdict based on "justice and humanity."

March Accident Damage Suit Filed

Laree V. Watson filed a $86,300 damage suit in Lancaster District Court Wednesday against Robert W. White in connection with a March 19, 1966, two-car accident.

The plaintiff alleges negligence on the part of the defendant when the car he was driving was in collision with one driven by the plaintiff on Highway 6 about one-third mile west of the city limits.

Post Office Bid Opening Slated Nov. 8

Congressman Clair Callan's office reported Wednesday bids will be opened Nov. 8 on the contracts to construct a new post office building here.

A spokesman for Rep. Callan said new construction specifications will be issued by the General Services Administration on Nov. 3 and the bid opening will take place in the GSA's regional office in Kansas City, Mo.

Construction is scheduled to start next spring on the building, expected to cost between $2.5 million and $2.8 million.

Twins, Brother Join Air Force In Family Affair

Memphis, Tenn. (AP) — It was a real family affair at the Air Force recruiting center here Wednesday.

Twins Randall and Richard Long and older brother Charles Long, 23, all enlisted. Air Force spokesman said it was the first time in the Southeast three brothers had entered the service at the same time.

All three were students at the University of Mississippi and had lived in the Memphis area until their family moved to Akron, Ohio, in 1963.

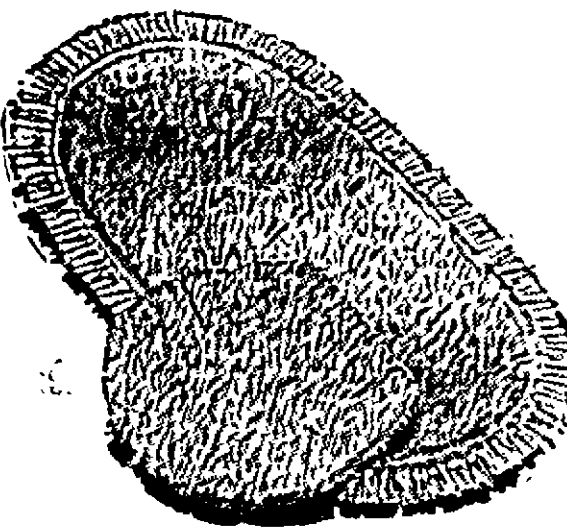

Just incidentally, Wednesday twins Richard and Randall were 19.

Goal: 'Reunite Europe'

London (UPI) — Violent thunderstorms swept London and Southeast England, causing thousands of commuters to be late for work. Highways in some places were flooded 18 inches deep and at least four commuter railroad stations were closed just before the rush hour.

Brussels, Belgium (AP) — The U.S. goal is to see a reunited Europe deciding its own destiny, Douglas MacArthur II, U.S. assistant secretary of state for congressional relations, told Belgian and American businessmen in Brussels.

ELECTIONS—1966

Voters To Pick 2 NU Regents

By DON WALTON
 Star Staff Writer

Four non-partisan contests for state office feature two incumbent candidates, one of whom trailed his general election opponent in the May primary election.

Nebraska voters will fill two district posts on the University of Nebraska Board of Regents and two district seats on the State Board of Education.

Terms for all four winners will be six years.

Voters in two State Supreme Court districts will also decide whether to retain in office for another term of six years two incumbent justices.

Judge Harry A. Spencer, 63, Lincoln, a Supreme Court justice since 1961, will be on the ballot in southeast Nebraska's First District.

Judge Leslie Boslaugh, 49, Hastings, a Supreme Court justice since 1961, is seeking voter approval in southwest Nebraska's Fifth District.

Regents Race

The contest for southeast Nebraska's First District NU regents post features incumbent Clarence E. Swanson and challenger Edward Schwartzkopf, both of Lincoln and both, incidentally, former Cornhusker football stars.

Swanson, 68, president of a downtown clothing store, has served on the board continuously since his election in 1951. He is currently president of the board.

The Lincoln businessman, who ran first in a four-man primary race, is past president of the NU Alumni Assn.

Schwartzkopf, 47, is coordinator of industrial arts and education for the Lincoln public schools. Prior to that, he had been a teacher, coach and administrator in the Lincoln school system.

Beat Bauer

Schwartzkopf upset State Sen. Hal Bauer of Lincoln to win the second spot in the November finals.

In the Omaha area's Second District, transportation executive Dick Herman is pitted against attorney and bank trust officer Robert E. Johnson Jr., for the seat vacated by J. LeRoy Welsh of Omaha.

Herman, 45, president of an Omaha transport company, was regional campaign director for Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater in 1964 and co-chairman of the successful referendum petition drive to place the 1965 state income tax law on this year's general election ballot.

Herman, who ran first in a nine-candidate primary scrap, is also chairman of the board of the Nebraska Association of Commerce and Industry.

Johnson, 38, an Omahan who is past president of the Lincoln Barristers Club, said when he filed that he did so "because I do not believe a seat on the Board of Regents should serve as a springboard for a political aspirant."

Stiff Struggle

Incumbent Hamilton F. Mitten faces an uphill struggle to retain his Third District (northeast Nebraska) seat on the Board of Education.

Challenger Allen P. Burkhardt, 66, Norfolk, led Mitten by a hefty margin in their first two-man contest last May.

Burkhardt, a former principal and superintendent of schools at Norfolk, is executive director of the Association of Nebraska Taxpayers, an organization strongly opposed to adoption of either a general sales or state income tax.

Mitten, 66, president of a Fremont savings and loan association, has served continuously on the board since his appointment in 1966. He was elected in 1956, and then won a full six-year term in 1960.

A former teacher who once served as principal at Fremont, Mitten defended the board's right to take a stand in favor of a broadened tax base when it became the subject of some controversy in 1964.

In south-central Nebraska's Fourth District, Jane C. Jones, 45, Seward housewife, and Lloyd V. Wright, 70, a Reynolds farmer, are locked in a contest to succeed Dr. Ray Hill of Seward.

Mrs. Jones, who ran first in a four-candidate primary race, has served as a member of her local school board and is a member of the Governor's Advisory Committee on Education. Wright was a candidate for the same post in 1960.

Denney Terms Callan 'Extremist'

Republican First District congressional candidate Robert V. Denney of Fairbury called his opponent, Democratic incumbent Clair Callan, an "extremist" Wednesday because Callan, according to the GOP challenger, "votes 92.6% of the time in support of President Johnson's pet legislation."

Denney said that Callan boasted of his independence when campaigning for the congressional seat two years ago but now "we see how Mr. Callan is so extremely loyal to Lyndon Johnson."

Nebraska Taxes Non-Conformist

THE TAX REVENUE SPLIT BETWEEN STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS

Source: U.S. Dept. of Commerce Figures for Nebraska as compared with the U.S. average, neighboring states and the lowest and highest states, New Jersey and South Carolina.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a five-part series of articles on taxes.)

By ODELL HANSON
Associated Press Writer

In a nation where public debt has become a way of life and where taxes are exacted by most of the devices known to man, Nebraska remains singularly non-conformist.

The state which once proudly labelled itself the nation's "white spot" can still boast these claims to fame:

—Lowest per capita state taxes in the nation.

—No state debt.

—No general sales tax or income tax yet in force.

The claims are true enough, but lose their luster under closer examination.

State-level taxes in fiscal 1965 averaged $78.01 per man, woman and child in Nebraska, an unparalleled low.

The next two rungs on the frugality ladder were occupied by New Jersey ($80.23) and New Hampshire ($80.78). Significantly or not, these happen to be the only two other states in the nation with neither general sales nor income taxes, although New Jersey levies a corporate income tax and taxes the incomes of its citizens who work outside the state, while

New Hampshire taxes income from intangibles. Heaviest per capita state tax load — $239.50 — was borne by residents of little Delaware.

So what are Nebraskans complaining about?

Truth is that state taxes represent only part of the tax burden on Nebraska citizens, even apart from federal taxes.

In Nebraska as in other states state and local governments represent a partnership. One partner can shift burden to the other. A penny-pinching state government may simply be transferring some of its load to city, county and school district governments. A local government which keeps taxes and spending at a minimum may be shifting its load to state government.

The Nebraskan who foots the bill is not likely to differentiate between state and local taxes. The property tax statement which he receives from his county courthouse wraps up state and local levies in a single package.

As a burden shifter, Nebraska state government is almost without peer.

In fiscal 1965, local government in Nebraska collected 64 1/2% of state-local tax dollars, or $64.50 for every $35.50 collected by state government.

The only state to top Nebraska in local tax dominance was New Jersey at 70.1%. New Hampshire — the third member of the no-sales, no-income tax triumvirate — ranked just behind Nebraska at 63 1/2%.

At the other extreme, South Carolina state government collected $3 for each $1 collected by local governments, or 75.60%.

Even Nebraska's no-debt position loses luster when state and local governments are combined for study.

State-level indebtedness in excess of $100,000 is prohibited by the state constitution.

Nebraska appears to get around the curb by letting lower governmental subdivisions run up the debts.

As of July 1, 1965, total non-federal debts at all levels of government in Nebraska including public power districts, totaled $737.3 million, or $499.17 for every man, woman and child in the state. Only 15 states had higher per capita debts.

Next: Nebraska's tax load is comparatively light, but distribution of load is challenged.

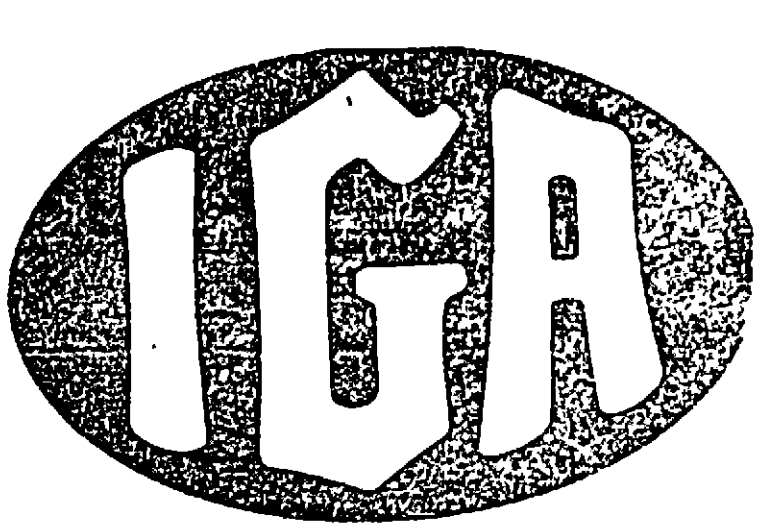

Property Tax Abolishment Is Opposed

The Board of Directors of the Nebraska Association of Commerce and Industry Wednesday announced its opposition to a proposed constitutional amendment abolishing the state property tax.

Adoption of this amendment could place the operation of state government in a crucial position until a new tax base is established and placed in operation by the Legislature," the board said.

The board also reported its opposition to a proposed amendment providing that if a broadened tax base is adopted, the state could levy a property tax only for state capital construction purposes and at least 20% of the revenue from the broad-based tax would have to be returned to local schools.

Also opposed was an amendment authorizing the Legislature to fix the value of land actively devoted to agricultural or horticultural use.

'Secret Study Would Undercut Wage Guidelines'

Boston (AP)—The Christian Science Monitor said Wednesday in a copyrighted story from Washington that the administration is "sitting on" a secret Commerce Department study, which, if released, "could seriously undermine President Johnson's efforts to keep wage settlements down."

The newspaper said that the survey revises statistics reported by the Council of Economic Advisors in 1963 which stated that labor productivity—output per man hour—was increasing at a rate of 3.2% on the average.

In Washington, the Commerce Department said it had made no such study and knew of no such study.

In congressional testimony last month, both Gardner Ackley, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, and Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz indicated strict reliance on the 3.2% guidelines might not be desirable.

Stats Wrong?

Since 1963 the 3.2% figure has been used as the logical ceiling on yearly wage increases. Many of the old statistics were accepted post-war figures.

The catch is that most of the old statistics are wrong, the Monitor said.

The new survey was prepared by the Office of Business Economics of the Commerce Department and was ready last June, the newspaper said.

The Monitor article cited well-informed sources as saying that the new figures place the labor-productivity increase higher than the 3.2% level, and closer to 4%.

"This means, theoretically, labor could demand wage increases of nearly 4% and still claim they were non-inflationary," the Monitor said.

Used Figure

"The White House has made a policy of a number—it has used this figure to hold down wage increases," said a Monitor source.

In Washington, sources close to the White House told the Associated Press they knew of no special study but noted the Commerce Department last July announced significant upward revisions in its Gross National Product figures for the previous three years.

This revision increased the five-year moving average for productivity from about 3.6 to 3.8%, one source said. This was followed, however, by new Labor Department man-hours statistics, also revised upward, which dropped the five-year average back to about 3.6%.

The long-range pattern is still about 3.2%, the sources said.

U.N. Diplomats Agree Move Is Impractical

United Nations, N.Y. (AP)—Move the United Nations? The idea is a pleasant pipe-dream, diplomats say, but as a practical matter, forget it.

Ambassador Jamil M. Baroudy, a veteran Saudi Arabian representative here, suggested in a speech Tuesday that members should think about the possibility of moving U.N. headquarters out of New York.

He ticked off a long list of complaints against the city that ranged from dirt and noise and lack of trees to political pressures, racial discrimination and the high cost of living.

But a sampling of the opinions of delegates Wednesday indicated little serious consideration was being given to his proposal.

"It's a non-starter," one Asian delegate said of the plan. "We're here and that's it."

'Problems, But...'

Chief S. O. Adebo, Nigeria's ambassador to the United Nations, said the African and Asian countries have many grievances "but this is not the solution." He mentioned specifically the problem of racial discrimination that many diplomats encounter.

"How I am treated is important to me," Adebo said. "But the interests of the organization itself are most important. We must be careful not to throw out the baby with the wash water."

A strong endorsement of New York City came from Ambassador Piero Vinci of Italy.

"The United Nations should be in the center of the world," he said, "and the center of the world at the moment is New York City."

'Doing Best'

A spokesman for the U.S. mission, asked for comment on the Baroudy proposal, said, "We are the host government and we are doing our best to live up to the responsibilities of the host government. We intend to continue doing that."

An Asian delegate said he believes, "There is a consensus among the Afro-Asians in favor of moving out of New York."

"But it's not feasible," he added. "No other city could accommodate the thousands of people who come here because of the United Nations." An African ambassador commented that he thought the United Nations "should be located in a neutralized place and New York is anything but neutralized. It is the center of big power politics."

"And there is the color problem," he said, "which has made it most uncomfortable for Asian and African delegates who must live in this city."

'Desert Ideal'

Another Asian representative said that "theoretically, I suppose it would be ideal to have the United Nations placed in the middle of a desert, but this, of course, would not be practical."

"From a practical standpoint," he went on, "I suppose New York is as good a location as any other. And besides, it is a little late in the game to think of moving this headquarters somewhere else. Where would we get the money for such a move?"

A diplomat from a non-aligned European country expressed sympathy with the complaints of the African and Asian diplomats but added, "Personally I like to live here. Here you have everything."

He said he had been hearing proposals to move the U.N. headquarters somewhere else for a long time "but I never took them seriously."

CANADIAN WHISKY—A BLEND • 80 PROOF • IMPORTED BY NATIONAL DISTILLERS PRODUCTS CO., NEW YORK

Join the parade to: THE SMOOTHEST WHISKY EVER TO COME OUT OF CANADA!

Now step up to Windsor Canadian: the remarkable, sippin'-smooth Canadian that's already changing thousands of Americans' ideas on the whisky to serve.

Tonight compare Windsor! Pour two drinks—highballs or over ice—one with your usual, one with Windsor Canadian. Notice the superior smoothness and the flavor of Windsor.

That's because no other custom-distilled whisky shares these three extraordinary features:

1. Only Windsor Canadian is made from choicest northern prairie grains, bursting with fresh flavor.
2. Only Windsor Canadian is born of icy mountain glacial water drawn clear from underground streams. 3. Only Windsor Canadian is aged in the incredibly dry air of Canada's Rockies. Where, nearly a mile high, it gentles to sippin'-smooth perfection.

Yet it costs no more than leading domestic whiskies, because we import Windsor Canadian, then bottle it here. Thus saving on duties and other charges. Compare the price and the smoothness of Windsor. Once you do, you'll never settle for less or pay more. Join the parade...tonight!

Accused Killer Stabs One Hostage To Death

New York (AP)—Police tear gas flushed a cursing, weeping man from a Bronx apartment Wednesday, after a 90-minute siege in which one of four hostages was stabbed to death. Two others were wounded, apparently by police shotguns.

Hundreds of police, newsmen and spectators on the street below heard the man, identified as Robert Phillips, 25, shout threats from the fifth-story window that he would kill his hostages.

"I've got a gun and a knife and I'll kill every one of them if you come near me," he yelled.

Police, firing shotgun blasts through the door and tear gas shells through the door and windows, routed Phillips from the apartment. They said he was wanted for questioning in two murders and had escaped from a state mental hospital three years ago.

In the apartment they found the body of Mrs. Leslie Thompson, 22, stabbed three times, in the bathtub. Her daughter, Tammy, 3, escaped injury except for shock and tear gas burns.

The other hostages—Phillips' sister, Margaret, 22, and her daughter, Deborah, 2—were wounded. Police said the child was in serious condition with head wounds, while her mother was hit in the arm.

Deputy Chief Police Inspector Thomas C. Renaghan said, "It is our belief that the woman and child suffered fragmentation wounds when police blasted the door with a shotgun."

Police said Phillips, a 275-pound six-footer, was wanted for questioning about the fatal beating of a 4-year-old boy Oct. 4 and the later stabbing of a woman.

Moroccan Submits To French Court

Paris (AP)—A high-ranking Moroccan official charged in the Ben Barka kidnaping case surrendered Wednesday forcing the judge to order a new trial.

Maj. Ahmed Dlimi, Moroccan deputy security chief, was arrested on charges of helping plan the Oct. 29, 1959, kidnaping of Moroccan leftist leader Mehdi Ben Barka, now presumed dead.

Dlimi had announced in Morocco Monday he would come to Paris on his own volition to clear himself and his country.

The action blew sky high one of the most controversial trials in France since World War II. Six defendants had been on trial for six weeks in the Ben Barka case and it had been expected to reach the jury Wednesday night.

The public prosecutor immediately filed motions for a new investigation and thus, in effect, a new trial.

After a recess, presiding Judge Jean Perez granted the motions, thus ending the current phase of the Ben Barka case.

Dlimi's first action was to challenge his indictment. His attorney filed a motion contending that French-Moroccan judicial accords do not permit his being tried by a French court.

A warm and sunny day on the coast of Portugal. The garden below the balcony is filled with flowers. A tree full of ripe pomegranates grows by the white-washed wall. Through the pine trees and over the tiled roofs of soft red, the blue Atlantic sparkles with instant diamonds. An American destroyer is putting out to sea. A British tanker is inbound, headed for the broad mouth of the Tagus.

"A fortunate day," says the astrology column "Lord Luck" in the London Daily Mail.

Lord Luck is not just a-whistlin' "Rule Britannia." Fortune showered on me yesterday.

I located an elegant estalagem — a sort of inn or private hotel — in the hills of this posh Lisbon resort suburb. (It is noted for its resident deposed royalty.)

It's a magnificent mansion. High ceilings and carved staircases. It has been remodeled into rooms, each with bath and a large deck with tables and chairs.

The house is on a quiet street, enclosed by wrought iron fencing. A small bar and dining room open on the garden. A fountain splashes pleasantly.

Breakfast and dinner go with the price of the room. And the cost of this elegance?

"It would be $9 a day," said the lady. (A bargain, I thought.) "That is for two, of course," she said. (At that price, I can't afford to go home.)

"If you want good value, go where the English go. If you want food, follow the French," said a local travel agent. "For sunshine, go where the Swedes go. And for exercise, go with the Germans."

"Here in Portugal we get them all."

"What about Americans?" I asked.

"Go with the Americans when you want to spend a lot of money. We can provide that, too," he said. (Too true. I still hurt from two nights in Estoril's grand new Estoril Sol, a sterile home away from home and loaded with two-day stopover Americans.)

In the warm evening we walk down to the stylish Estoril Palacio. Rubbing elbows with Pretenders to the Throne of France. With ex-Kings of Balkan states that have disappeared in the remapping of Europe.

"The Palacio was headquarters of Germany's spies during World War II," said the travel agent. "The Hungarians had a large spy center in the big house on the beach."

"The Allied spies stayed at the old Aviz in Lisbon—where Gulbenkian, the richest man in the world, lived. The Aviz has been torn down. But the chef and the maitre d'hotel opened a new restaurant called the Aviz."

It was all very proper since Portugal was neutral. "All the spies arrived in civilian clothing. They changed from uniform on the airplane — we would have had to intern them in uniform."

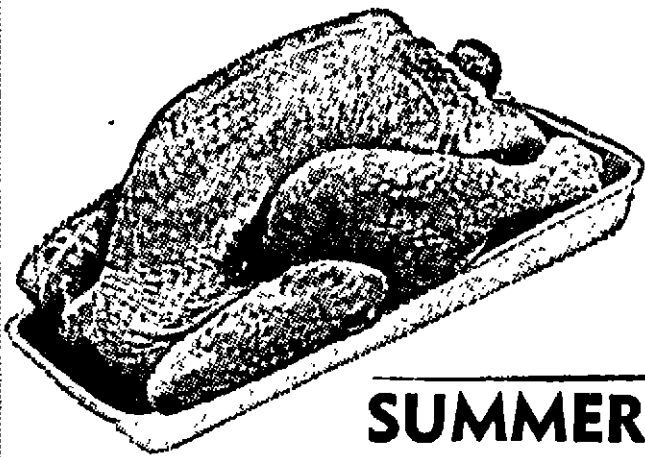

"Naturally we all knew who they were. And they all knew each other. American agents managed to break into the safe at the Japanese Embassy, and it was very exciting in those days. Also they spent money like water."

What they spied on he didn't know.

"Perhaps just on each other."

I imagine spies had the house where I live — at least, I hope so. It's excellent spying out on the deck in the morning. With hot Brazilian coffee and a view of what everybody washed, hanging on the lines in the bright sun all the way down the pine tree hill.

delightful for a chilly evening

Better than the local beanery can serve are these "Beanery Burgers." That is, unless the chef knows the flavor secret—rich tomato sauce.

Convenient, canned tomato sauce is the most popular of the commercially canned tomato products used as a recipe ingredient. It is low in cost and allows the cook to find better use for her time than preparing the sauce that comes so easily and tastily from the can.

This recipe is especially good due to the "extras" added to the canned pork and beans. Bacon pieces and Cheddar cheese add delicious flavor as well as extra nutrition to the old standby. With these "delicious" "Beanery Burgers" serve cole slaw, brown bread with whipped butter, and apple pie with milk or coffee. This is a hearty meal in the American tradition. Everyone will love it!

BEANERY BURGERS

8 slices bacon
2 lb. lean ground beef
2 tablesp. minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
1 (1-lb. 14-oz.) can pork and beans
1 (8-oz.) can tomato sauce
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

Cook bacon in skillet; drain on absorbent paper and crumble. Remove excess fat from skillet. Mix ground beef with onion and salt, cupshape mixture into 4 patties. Brown on each side in bacon drippings. Combine pork and beans, tomato sauce, cheese and crumbled bacon. Spoon mixture around burgers in skillet. Cover and simmer 10 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Fall's bountiful harvest of food brings us a host of fresh and colorful vegetables to add a bright note to your daily meals. The season is a perfect time to focus more attention on this all-too-often unimaginative part of a menu.

For example, the flavor of lemon in a sauce or topping can perk up many a vegetable... fresh, frozen or canned. And these vegetable variations are quite easy to prepare when you use bottled lemon juice to save the fuss of squeezing and straining the fresh fruit.

A quick Lemon-Butter sauce can be made from ½ cup butter or margarine, 3 tablespoons bottled lemon juice, 1 tablespoon chopped chives, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley and a dash of cayenne pepper. Serve the sauce hot over cooked and salted vegetables or potatoes.

Here are more tempting ways of dressing up vegetables. One is a recipe for colorful Golden Broccoli; the other is for Sweet and Sour Green Beans.

GOLDEN BROCCOLI

1 pound fresh broccoli; or 1 package (10 ounces) frozen broccoli spears
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup bottled lemon juice
½ can (10½-ounce can) cream of chicken soup
½ cup grated cheddar cheese
Paprika

Wash and trim fresh broccoli; cut stalks into large pieces. Cook fresh or frozen broccoli in salted water until tender. Place in shallow oven-proof serving dish. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons bottled lemon juice. Mix soup with remaining 2 tablespoons bottled lemon juice and pour over broccoli. Sprinkle grated cheese on top; sprinkle paprika lightly over cheese. Place under broiler 5 to 7 minutes, or until golden brown. 4 servings.

SWEET AND SOUR GREEN BEANS

2 pounds green beans or 2 packages (9 ounces each) frozen French-style green beans
¼ cup water
4 strips bacon
1 tablespoon bacon drippings
2 tablespoons grated onion
½ cup bottled lemon juice
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Wash fresh beans; trim ends. Cut in julienne strips. Place in sauce-pan with water. Cover and simmer 25 to 30 minutes or until tender. (With frozen green beans, cook according to package directions.) Cook bacon in frypan. Pour off all but 1 tablespoon of the drippings. Add bottled lemon juice, sugar, grated onion, salt, pepper, and vegetable liquid drained from beans. Bring to a boil; pour over cooked green beans. Crumble bacon on top. 6 to 8 servings.

Once a homemaker has discovered the one-dish meal, it's hard to get her to go back to the meal-of-many-parts. If she's a conscientious cook, however, she insists that the dish be more than just easy for her. Or pretty or tasty, for that matter. It must add up to a balanced meal for her family. No matter how you look at it, Fish and Asparagus au Gratin fills the bill.

FISH AND ASPARAGUS AU GRATIN

1 lb. package frozen fish fillets (haddock, cod, ocean perch, flounder or sole)
1 package frozen asparagus
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1½ tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ cup milk
1½ cups grated cheddar cheese

Let fillets thaw on refrigerator shelf or at room temperature. Arrange in a 11 x 7 inch baking dish. Cook asparagus according to package directions; drain and arrange over fish. Melt butter in a saucepan. Add flour, salt, pepper and mustard; blend well. Gradually add milk, stirring constantly to prevent lumps. Cook, stirring, until thickened. Add cheese and stir until melted. Pour over fish in baking dish. Bake in a hot (400 degrees) oven for 20 minutes; then, if desired, broil until lightly browned. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

SEAFOOD BARBECUE SAUCE

¼ cup wine vinegar
1½ tablespoons soy sauce
1 can (8½ ounces) crushed pineapple
½ cup chicken broth
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
3 scallions, thinly sliced
1 small tomato, peeled and diced

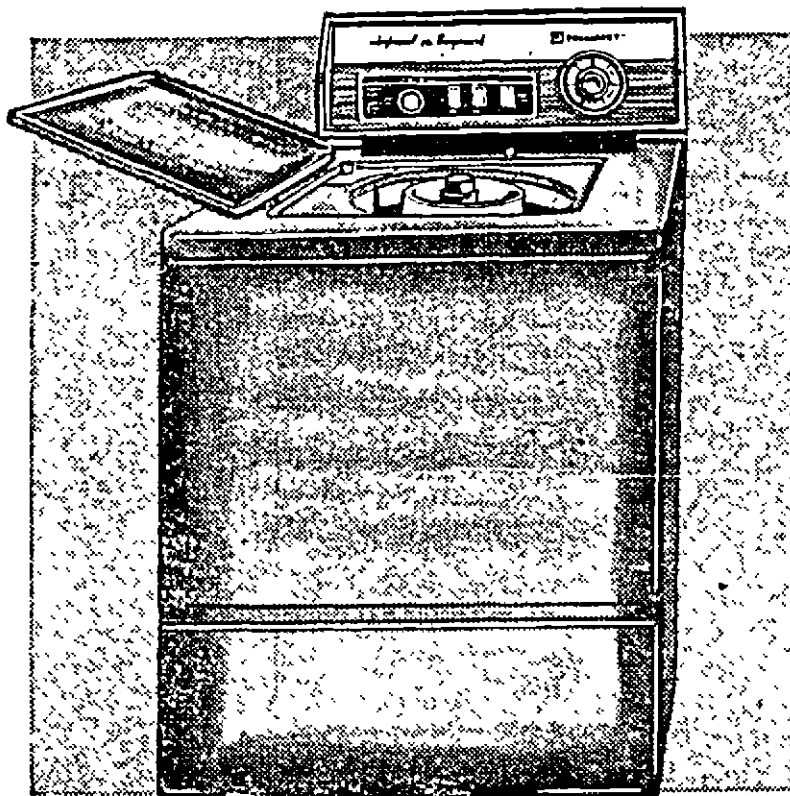

Combine first 4 ingredients in saucepan. Blend sugar and cornstarch thoroughly, then add to contents of pan, stirring until completely smooth. Bring to a boil, over medium heat, then cook and stir until sauce is clear and thickened. Add onions and tomato. Reduce heat and simmer sauce for 3 or 4 minutes. Yield: about 2 cups.

Opening lead — six of hearts.

Let's say you're declarer at three notrump and West leads a heart. You play low from dummy and win the seven with the ten.

The contract seems easy enough to make, so you play a low diamond to the jack, which wins, and continue with a diamond to the queen, which also wins. This development is disappointing, since you expected the player with the ace to take it like a good fellow, in which case you would have had an easy time making the contract.

But all is not yet lost, since the spades are likely to be divided 3-3 or 4-2, so you play a spade to the ace and continue with the king.

If you have a sympathetic partner he will commiserate with you all right — but be advised that such partners are extremely hard to find. He is much more likely to point out to you, in unmistakable language, that you could have made the hand had you led a heart towards dummy when you were in with the queen of diamonds.

You can't argue with him, because you know he is right. At the time you were playing the hand, the thought of leading a heart probably flitted through your mind, but you dismissed it because of the possibility that West's original heart lead may have been made from a short suit headed by the six. To play spades at that point seemed less dangerous.

But now that you have a chance to think the matter over fully, you realize that you made your mistake even earlier. What you should have done after winning the diamond in dummy with the jack was to lead the A-K of spades to see how the spades were divided.

Luncheons

A series of eight current events luncheons, open to the public and featuring guest speakers, will be sponsored by the public affairs committee of the Soroptimist Club of Lincoln.

Beginning with a 12:30 o'clock luncheon on Saturday, Oct. 22, at the Hotel Lincoln, at which J.O. Grant, director of the Lincoln Job Corps Center, will speak, the series will continue on Nov. 12, with Lloyd Hinkley, city councilman, as guest speaker.

Luncheon reservations must be made by the preceding Thursday afternoon with Mrs. William A. Dahlstrom, chairman, at 423-4594.

SHOWER

pleased bride-elect-and her fiance

When November bride-elect, Miss Alice Zwienen, revealed plans recently for her approaching marriage to Robert Bauer, the nearly 40 feminine co-workers of the future bride at the State Game Commission decided that a grocery shower would be a perfect and practical party.

What the group did not plan, however, was that the prospective bridegroom would drop by in time to help unwrap the appetizing gifts.

Hostesses for the party were Mrs. Alan Sleight and Mrs. Don Harvey, who entertained Wednesday evening, Oct. 12, at the home of Mrs. Sleight. Seated are Mr. Bauer and his fiancée, Miss Zwienen, and standing (from the left) are Miss Karen Stibor, Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. Jack Hanna, Mrs. Sleight, Miss Zwienen's mother, Mrs. Emil Zwienen, and her fiance's mother, Mrs. John Bauer.

The wedding of Miss Zwienen and Mr. Bauer will take place on Saturday, Nov. 26, at St. Mary's Church.

Planning a combined business and pleasure trip are Mr. and Mrs. Don Falk, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mulinix and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Riebe, who will attend a national insurance meeting at the Broadmoor Hotel in Colorado Springs, Oct. 27 to 30.

There will be a general exodus to Colorado beginning tomorrow — Some of the Cornhusker followers plan to headquarter in Denver before and after the game, and others are hoping to spend a day or two in Colorado Springs and the Broadmoor before turning homeward—All of this, of course, is dependent upon the weather.

If you are staying at home this weekend you might enjoy thumbing through the pages of the current issue of Holiday magazine—You'll find an article "Finland" authored by Shirley Schoonover of Lincoln.

We hear that Holiday sent Mrs. Schoonover to Finland in the late spring for the express purpose of the article.

And Saturday night will not be a completely lost evening in town — there's a dinner dance.

The other day we mentioned that the Saturday Night club was having a "Go Big Red" party on Saturday evening at Hotel Cornhusker. This morning we'll tell you that there will be two guest couples — Mr. and Mrs. Robert Denney of Fairbury, and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Salm of Seward.

The party planning is in the hands of a committee which is composed of the recently - elected officers including Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Lamphere, presidents; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Smith, vice-presidents; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn E. Thompson, treasurers; Mr. and Mrs. Roger Cunningham, secretaries, and board members Mr. and Mrs. Emory W. Nelson.

FOUR GOOD RECIPES TO SAVE FOR BUSY DAYS

SKINNER

10-MINUTE MACARONI AND CHEESE
2 cups SKINNER Large Elbow Macaroni
1 can Cheddar Cheese Soup
1/2 cup milk

Cook macaroni as package directs; drain. Meanwhile, blend soup with milk and heat. Add to macaroni. Mix well. Serves 4 or 5. Average cost per serving: 8¢. For an extra tasty dish, top with grated cheddar cheese; bake at 325° until golden brown.

NOODLES BAVARIAN
1 10-oz. pkg. SKINNER Egg Noodles
1 lb. frankfurters
1 16-oz. can sauerkraut

Cook noodles as package directs. Cook frankfurters along with noodles. Heat sauerkraut in separate pan. Drain noodles and franks. (Cut franks in pieces if desired.) Immediately add sauerkraut. Toss lightly. Serves 6. Average cost per serving: 19¢.

MAC-A-MAGIC LUNCH
2 cups SKINNER Elbow Macaroni
1 10 1/2-oz. can condensed cream of chicken soup
1/2 cup milk
1 tablespoon chili sauce
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon paprika
Salt and pepper to taste
1 6 1/2-oz. can chunk-style tuna

Cook macaroni as package directs; drain. Meanwhile, combine soup with milk in heavy saucepan. Add chili sauce, Worcestershire, paprika, salt, pepper; blend well. Add macaroni and tuna. Heat until bubbly. Serve on buttered toast. Serves 4. Average cost per serving: 18¢.

EASY ITALIAN SPAGHETTI
1 7-oz. pkg. SKINNER Long Spaghetti
1 small onion, minced
1 tablespoon salad oil
1/2 to 1-pound ground beef
1 8-oz. can tomato sauce
Parmesan cheese, grated

Saute onion in hot oil. Add beef and brown, stirring constantly. Stir in sauce. (If desired, a small can of mushroom pieces may be added to sauce). Add salt to taste. Bring to boil, reduce heat, simmer 5 minutes. Meanwhile, cook spaghetti as package directs; drain. Pour sauce over spaghetti. Serve with grated Parmesan cheese. Serves 4. Average cost per serving: 22¢.

You can make these thrifty recipes even quicker than you can prepare a packaged dinner. And they're hearty meals a hungry family will really dig into. One secret: start with Skinner. Skinner products cook firm yet tender, have an appetizing golden color, extend the delicious flavors of meat, cheese and other more costly foods. That's because Skinner gives you the incomparable goodness of 100% amber durum wheat*... and that's important.

SKINNER
MACARONI • SPAGHETTI • NOODLES

*The Wheat Flour Institute says, "Careful research has shown that durum wheat, and durum wheat alone, has all the qualities to produce the finest macaroni."

NEWS

Everything from trips across town to cross-country journeys keep suburban residents on the move today. And everyone from the very young to the very "young-at-heart" gets in on the activity.

KESSLER HEIGHTS

Two weeks is a long time for anyone to spend in the hospital, but particularly unbearable when you're only seven years old and full of energy.

Seven-year-old Jane Kyster found home a welcome spot to return to when she was released from Bryan Memorial Hospital Tuesday morning after a two-week stay.

She was welcomed home by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Kyster, brothers Ted and Kirk, and sisters Debra and Teresa.

Returns and departures seem to balance off in Kessler Heights this week, as eight Kessler Heights neighbors say farewell to Mrs. George Barlow. Plans are being completed for a Thursday morning farewell coffee at the home of Mrs. James Lowe with Mrs. Don Luecke as co-hostess.

All neighbors of Mrs. Barlow, the guests will be Mrs. Donald Seuss, Mrs. Daniel Sramek, Mrs. Kathy Coffman, Mrs. Lloyd Clagett, Mrs. Cornell Arendt, and Mrs. Kent Sherman.

Mr. and Mrs. Barlow and their sons Scott, eight, Douglas, four, and Brad, seven months, will make their new home at 2424 Bradfield Drive.

FIENE HEIGHTS

The reunion in the Ken Keller home last Sunday might well have been a rerun of the old television series, "This is Your Life," when Mr. Keller's sister, Mrs. L. H. Harrison, arrived from Menlo Park, Calif., after eleven years of separation.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrington stopped in Lincoln en route home after a visit with other relatives in Ware, Mass., and stayed, catching up on their long absence, until Wednesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Chaires Noren also had week-end guests at their home. Coming from Laurel, were Mrs. Noren's parents, Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Herse who arrived Thursday.

In time for Saturday's game, they were joined by Mrs. Noren's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Herse, and their youngsters, Cindy, 13, and Mark, 7, all of Omaha. The guests stayed until Sunday, completing the busy week-end with a family gathering of the three households.

BETHANY PARK HEIGHTS

Former missionaries to Turkey are guests this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Manglitz. The Rev. Merrill Isely, who took his bride to Turkey as a missionary of the United Church of Christ and stayed for 42 years, arrived with Mrs. Isely Tuesday for a regional meeting of suburban areas

being held at First United Church of Christ.

They will return to their home in Wichita, Kan. after the meeting concludes today.

PRAIRIE VALLEY

The Ed Felton home seemed to be "where the boys are" this week, as the house has been besieged by young men. It started with the return of the Feltons' 18-year-old son, John, from John F. Kennedy College in Wahoo, on Friday.

After taking John back to school on Sunday, the Feltons on Monday welcomed their nephew, Jay Baumberger, and his friend, Dale Bunkers, both of Dell Rapids, S.D. The pair accompanied by the Reverend Father Ryan had come to Lincoln to pick up Dale's older brother Roger who had undergone surgery at St. Elizabeth's hospital, and to visit with the Feltons and their son, Verne, until Tuesday when they returned to Dell Rapids.

ABBY

more sensible now

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our 27-year old daughter, who has been teaching school, asked us to come to the city (we live in the country) so we could meet the man she has decided to marry. He is 30, wears glasses, is bald and can't dance. They want to marry within the next few months. My husband and I are at a loss.

A few years ago our daughter wouldn't even date a man unless he was good looking and could dance. We are concerned about whether she will be happy with him. They have kept steady company for a year. He is quiet, educated, owns his own business and treats her well. Should we give them our blessings?

AT A LOSS

DEAR AT: Are they asking for your permission or for your blessings? Your daughter shows better sense today than she did a "few years ago" when she refused to go out with a man unless he was good looking and could dance. Give them your blessings and don't be concerned.

DEAR ABBY: There are some newcomers who live on the edge of town. They have about nine kids. These people (the whole family!) came to church last Sunday in a dump truck. And Abby, I am not saying they weren't clean, but they sure didn't look like they were dressed up for church to me.

Don't you think this shows lack of respect for the Lord? And shouldn't someone in the community tell these people? I am not a snob, but I think appearances are important.

NO SNOB

DEAR NO: I doubt if the Lord cares how people dress for church or how they get there, as long as they go.

Confidential to "WANTS TO KNOW" IN JERSEY CITY, N.J.: The guest of honor should be introduced to each guest collectively, "Hey, everybody, this is MARY LOUISE!"

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal, unpublished reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

New members of the Fifty-Fifty Dancing Club were welcomed Tuesday evening at the club's first dinner-dance of the fall season.

Club officers, headed by Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Bridges, co-presidents, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sagness, party chairmen, were in charge of arrangements for the Halloween dance, held at the Hotel Lincoln.

Included among the new members are (from the left) Mr. and Mrs. Galen Fritchie, the Rev. and Mrs. Thomas Keefe, Mr. and Mrs. Merwin O. Phelps, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Hays, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bouse and Mr. and Mrs. Harley McCoid. Not

'Polish October' Of Defiance Described As Straightening Out Party

Warsaw, Poland (U) — Poland's 1956 breakaway from Russian control was portrayed by the Warsaw regime Wednesday as a correction of the Communist Party line.

A laudatory review of party chief Wladyslaw Gomulka's 10-year rule appeared in Trybuna Ludu, organ of Gomulka's Polish United Workers Party, and other papers.

It was the first public mention this year of the anniversary of the historic "Polish October" and it came 10 years to the day after a face-down in Warsaw between Gomulka and then Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Gomulka, then newly rehabilitated from Stalinist exile and prison, successfully demanded the pullback of Russian troops nearing Warsaw, ousted Soviet commanders from the Polish army and ended Russian dictation of Polish party appointments.

Poland and the Soviet Union settled their differences without bloodshed, but a pro-Polish demonstration in Budapest the following week helped spark the tragic Hungarian revolt. This was not mentioned in Trybuna Ludu.

"The broad masses have accepted with enthusiasm and trust the decisions of the October plenum . . . In 10 laborious years the political line has passed the tests of life," Trybuna Ludu said.

In Poland today, "there is a place for all patriots irrespective of their outlook, who wish to participate actively in the building of a new Poland," the paper declared.

But it added that "the behavior of the leadership of the (Roman Catholic) church hierarchy stands against the basic principles of that unity."

"Interests of the state and of the nation . . . demand a normalization of relations between church and state which can be accomplished only on the basis of respect for the Polish constitution and of respect for the laws and regulations by the church hierarchy."

Trybuna Ludu said, "Citizens today have full rights and guarantees . . . The fundamentals of social discipline have been strengthened by respect for rights and obligations of citizens."

Oslo (UPI) — The Nobel Peace Prize for 1966, a year of elusive peace, will be deferred until next year, the Norwegian parliament's Nobel committee announced Wednesday.

There was speculation the prize is being kept for the man or organization that can help most to solve the Viet Nam conflict.

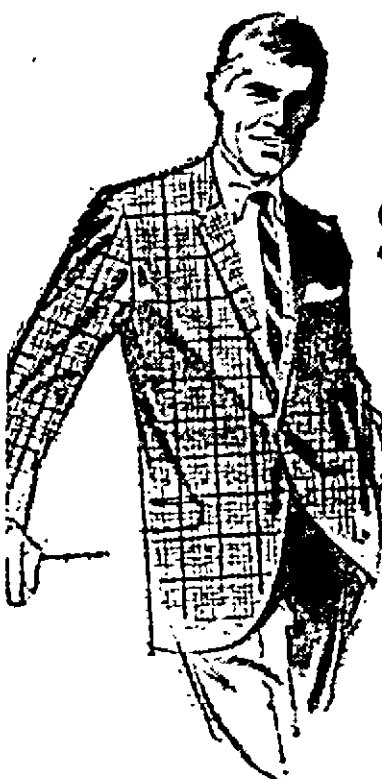

In keeping with tradition, the award committee gave no reason for its decision.

The committee can make a separate peace prize award for 1967 in addition to this year's award.

U.N. Secretary General U Thant had been mentioned as a possible winner of the 1966 award. Observers said Thant would be given the 1966 prize should his efforts to bring peace to Viet Nam succeed.

Man Serving Life Term For 1953 Slaying Freed

By Associated Press

The State Parole Board Wednesday paroled a 61-year-old State Penitentiary inmate serving a life term for a 1953 Cheyenne County slaying. Ulicious Crockett of Sidney was convicted of second degree murder in connection with the shooting death of Louise Thomas. He began serving the term on Oct. 6, 1953.

Crockett was one of 14 inmates at the Penitentiary and Women's Reformatory who were granted paroles by the state board. The board commuted the sentences of two inmates and deferred decision on the parole request of another.

Women's Reformatory inmates paroled, listing name, age, home, crime, county in which convicted, term and date of sentencing, included: Bonds Lee Menze, 26, Arapahoe; aiding and abetting and violation of bench parole; 12 years; Oct. 20, 1965.
Josephine Bryan, 23, Council Bluffs,
Iowa; breaking and entering; Saunders;
12 years; Dec. 21, 1965.
Pearle Abarr, 24, Lincoln; grand larceny and violation of bench parole; Lancaster; 12 years; Sept. 22, 1965.
Penitentiary inmates paroled included:
Sam Virgilio, 22, Omaha; robbery and

1961.
Homer Erickson, 29, Omaha; issued no account check; Douglas; 3-4 years; Jan.
6, 1963.
Larry Eklow, 24, Shelton; robbery;
Douglas; 3 years; April 7, 1963.
David Hankenson, 22, Omaha; burglary; Douglas; 3 years; Feb. 10, 1963.
Leland Harris, 24, Omaha; grand larceny; Douglas; 3 years; Feb. 14, 1963.
James O'Brien, 29, Detroit, Mich.;
burglary; Douglas; 1-3 years; Sept. 22, 1963.
Carl Peterson Jr., 41, Omaha; no account check; Douglas; 3 years; Dec. 1, 1963.
Charles Anderson, 26, Sioux City, Iowa; escape custody; Hall; 1 year; Oct. 2, 1963
(started serving Aug. 22, 1961).
Eugene Beck, 21, Marquette; non-sup-

1963.
Donald Domann, 42, Lincoln; forgery;
Lancaster; 3 years; May 22, 1963.
Penitentiary inmates whose sentences were commuted included:

NPPS Reports Peak Load Time

The Nebraska Public Power System's peak load period last month came between 11 and 12 a.m. on Sept. 1 when it provided 522,600 kilowatts of electricity, a report showed Wednesday.

The NPPS said this was up 17.70% from Sept. 1, 1965, but 4,800 kilowatts less than the peak hour in September, 1964.

The gross firm energy for September was up 13.2% from a year earlier. The NPPS load factor was 65.73%.

Dirksen Accuses LBJ Of Harpo Marx Tactics

Washington (UPI)—Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen accused President Johnson Wednesday of "ear-punching, budgetary lack of principle and over-reckless pursuit of Great Society goals."

He said the administration had political salesmen "who pursue domestic social programs with the pop-eyed ardor of a Harpo Marx chasing blondes."

All this and more was delivered by Dirksen in a half-hour, humorous assault on Johnson and his administration as part of a critique on the approaching end of the 89th Congress.

The words were pure Dirksen, but were in printed form because the 70-year-old GOP leader is in Walter Reed Army Medical Center awaiting surgery later in the week to remove metal pins holding together his fractured hip. He broke the hip in a fall last spring.

Youth Sentenced To Death For Woman's Murder

Karnes City, Tex. (UPI)—A District Court Wednesday convicted Johnny Rudy Enriquez, 19, and sentenced him to death for murdering the wife of a Marine during an orgy of killing triggered by the refusal of Enriquez' sweetheart to marry him.

The killing of Mrs. Kay Foss, 21, last April 25 was part of a bloody rampage in which Enriquez was accused of killing four other persons—his sweetheart, her brother, her father and a highway patrolman that tried to stop him.

The jury deliberated two hours and 17 minutes. The defense said it would appeal.

Lt. Philip Foss, stationed at Beaufort, South Carolina, said he was "very pleased justice was done." Enriquez was convicted of killing Mrs. Foss to get her car in a getaway attempt.

Army Faces Serious Shortage Of Captains

Washington (AP)—The Army, now in the midst of a massive Viet Nam buildup, has a serious shortage of captains—with no immediate relief in sight — it was learned Wednesday.

Officials said there are about 32,000 captains on duty now, 2,500 below the planned strength for this year.

But those figures tell only part of the story, sources said.

The Army would like congressional approval to add upwards of 5,000 new captains next year. These must come from the 16,400 1st lieutenants now on active duty, and the Army isn't sure how many of those officers will elect to extend their obligated duty tours.

More Spaces
"We've got more spaces available than people to promote into them," one source said.

The shortage is being felt to a degree in Viet Nam. Some first lieutenants are commanding combat companies, although that job belongs to a captain under Army tables of organization.

Pentagon officials emphasize, however, that most of these officers are only a few months away from promotion to captain.

The officials add also that the Army is meeting its rotation requirements in Viet Nam and no officer is required to serve there more than a year.

Steps Taken
To meet its present officer shortage—and in anticipation of future needs—sources said the army has taken these steps:

1. It is not letting critically ment, released at the capitol, carried the title, "Where Our Nation Stands—At Home and Abroad." And he concluded that the status was about the same as in 1933 when he listened as President Franklin D. Roosevelt declared: "The government's house is not in order."

Some of Dirksen's observations:

"Uncertainty, queasy doubts, bewilderment, have spread across the country; labor and business, the farmer and small businessman, even the federal civil service worker, all have been subjected to government-by-arm-twisting..."

"Abroad, there is jeering and sneering at our country. Our flags are burned and spat upon. Our embassies attacked. In Viet Nam the American death toll continues to mount..."

"Meanwhile, the administration goes its higgledy-piggledy way, its high priests no longer the flower of American culture but skilled political salesmen who pursue domestic social programs with the pop-eyed ardor of a Harpo Marx chasing blondes."

No Improvement
After a year, Dirksen said, "There has been no improvement under the Great Society" of America's standing abroad and the position in Viet Nam.

He noted that Johnson in recent campaign speeches accused the Republican Party of "scaring people."

Dirksen recalled that Democratic television ads in 1964 "preached" that Republicans favored radioactive ice cream cones for children, "pushing the button" to blow up the world, increased bombing in Viet Nam and destroying the Social Security system.

"Mr. President, as is your wont," said Dirksen, "you are too modest. We bow to you and acknowledge your superiority. When it comes to preaching fear, you're tops with us."

NASON ON EDUCATION:

Hearing Skills Training Studied

By DR. LESLIE J. NASON

The five senses — seeing, hearing, smelling, tasting and touching—enable man to gain knowledge of the world about him. But schools have made few attempts to improve a child's sensitivity in any of these areas.

In the case of hearing, for example, it has been assumed some children naturally hear better than others and that nothing much can be done about it. Of course, where there is extreme loss of hearing, mechanical aids are available.

Perhaps all children could be trained to make better use of their ears. There is some question as to whether a sense of pitch is entirely a gift of birth or something which may be developed and improved.

Certainly, those children who are born with nervous systems more capable of high-level training in any of the sense areas could make a greater contribution if they were given ample opportunity to develop their special talents.

New Materials

As a start in this important area of investigation, a study is under way at the University of Illinois to develop and test materials that hold promise of improving the auditory sensitivity of children who are gifted in music.

To aid auditory training at the college level, materials have been programmed in a method similar to that used in foreign language laboratories. The programmed matter allows individual drill work and a form of self-instruction.

The project is directed by Professor Richard Colwell, who says, "Recent months have indicated the American society is becoming increasingly aware of the value of the arts to an educated society. As in other areas of the curriculum, creativity and giftedness in the arts must be identified and nurtured."

Through the use of tapes, each student can develop his hearing skills at his own pace and then practice their use during music ensemble periods.

Auditory Skills

This high school program may allow a student entering the University of Illinois to omit the first year of college work in auditory skills.

The idea of training elementary and high school students to use their senses to better advantage leads to fascinating possibilities. For instance, special proficiency in the use of any one of the senses gives a person an advantage provided he is fortunate enough to enter a line of work dependent, to some extent, upon that sense.

As an example, along with physical strength and co-ordination, Babe Ruth had better-than-normal vision to help him establish home run records.

Time may come, perhaps in the near future, when school counselors will have information on the sense abilities of each student and thereby be better able to guide them in their vocational choices. Since it is assumed that people are happier and make their best contribution to society when they are engaged in an occupation for which they are best suited, this new tool of the counselor would be an important one.

Boycott By Housewives May Cause Grocery Price War

Denver, Colo. (AP) — A housewives' boycott of five supermarket chains in Denver in a demand for lower food prices may touch off a grocery price war in the city, an executive of one target company predicted Wednesday.

The statement came from Lloyd King, vice president and general manager of the King Supermarkets as the stay-away campaign went through its third day and showed signs of spreading to other cities.

Every firm, King said, is trying to maintain its share of the Denver market and price cutting could develop. If a war breaks out, he said, it probably would be temporary "because such a war is rather disastrous and someone usually gets hurt if it lasts too long."

How Many Leaders of the housewives' drive said they couldn't be sure how many women are participating in the boycott. The Denver Post said one report was that 100,000 were taking part.

The other Denver chains toward which the boycott is directed are Safeway, Red Owl, Miller's and Furr's.

At Houston, Tex., a Texas Housewives Association has been organized to boycott chain supermarkets beginning Monday.

"Buy milk for babies only . . . bread for lunches only . . . Serve meals two days a week without meat . . . Boycott bacon and ham entirely," women were urged by Mrs. Charles F. Mitchell, who organized the association.

Government Bans Fluoride Drugs For Pregnant Women

Washington (AP) — The government banned from the market Wednesday certain prenatal prescription drugs containing fluoride which have been promoted for prevention of tooth decay in children.

Selective Service Reminds Students Of Test Deadline

Washington (AP) — The selective service issued a reminder Wednesday: This Friday is the deadline for filing applications to take its college qualification tests on Nov. 18 and 19.

Application cards and information bulletins may be obtained at any local draft board.

Any registrant may apply who is presently in college or is a high school senior or graduate and has not previously taken the test. A registrant takes the test only once.

when taken by expectant mothers.

Dr. James L. Goddard, commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration, said there is insufficient evidence to support claims that the vitamin-mineral preparations containing fluoride prevent tooth decay in children when the drugs are taken by expectant mothers.

"We have consulted a number of leading dental authorities and their opinions are in accord with ours," Goddard said. "It is not recognized that taking fluorides before a child is born will impart stronger teeth or prevent decay."

Under usual dosages, Goddard said these prenatal preparations present no safety problem.

'Ladycott'

A Dallas, Tex., woman, Mrs. M. J. Ratliff, labeled a campaign by a group she helped form as a "ladycott." She asked for marchers with protest signs to go to some food stores but emphasized the campaign is directed against prices in general, not specific stores.

Mrs. Betty Weleba, who has become a leader in the two-month-old campaign at Phoenix, Ariz., said she may go to Los Angeles to help women there get a lower food price campaign launched.

The motto of the Phoenix protesters is "Speak now or forever pay the price."

There was an abrupt halt in a food price war in Portland, Ore., where some stores had been giving away free bread, milk and cottage cheese with purchases.

The items went back on the price list after Dist. Atty. George Van Hoomissen of Multnomah County said independent grocers had protested that the price war violated state law. He said he was looking into their complaints.

Bufs Expected To Test Husker Rushing Defense

... NOT EXPECTED TO CHANGE ATTACK

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

When the nation's third-ranked rushing defense (Nebraska) faces the 11th best rushing team (Colorado) in the nation, what can be expected?

—JONES, HART CHALLENGE—

Receiving Crown May Elude Barney

Kansas City, Mo. — Attention Eppie Barney. Two of your split-end colleagues have suddenly become intent challengers and want the Big Eight Conference catching crowns you won last year and most thought were bolted down so securely this year.

Barney, the pass-grabbing Marlin at Iowa State still does lead the league with his 26 snafes and whopping 347 yards. He is also still zeroed in on the conference's career receiving record. In fact 12 more will give him a three-year total of 73 and put him even with Jim Doran, an Iowa State end in 1918-49-50.

However, if Kansas State's Dave Jones and Oklahoma's Ben Hart continue to roam around using butterfly nets for hands and stealing catches away from defenders, Barney's chances for back-to-back championships might be swiped away.

Jones is a Wildcat sophomore and described by Doug Weaver as having "exceptional hands and a smooth, fluid approach to the defender." Jones' approach to the defender as the defender hasn't been smooth and fluid, however. He's leaped into contention, now ranking No. 2 after his six catches and 188 yards against Nebraska.

Those 188 yards are the second-most ever recorded by a Big Eighter in a game and let Jones gain over 100 yards on Barney. The six catches for the one-time quarterback were equal to Barney's work for the day, but Jones' total row stands at 12 catches and 239 yards, a mark which is only 45 yards and 11 grabs behind.

Football Gambling Not Limited To Louisiana

... BRIBE ATTEMPTS, HOWEVER, NOT WIDESPREAD IN MOST SPORTS

New York (AP) — "Gambling," says university official James J. Corbett, "is no more unique in Baton Rouge than it is in Des Moines, Iowa, South Bend, Ind., or Los Angeles, Calif."

Corbett is the athletic director at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, La., where Tuesday a 26-year-old barber, Samuel Joseph Graziano, was charged with attempting to bribe three-fourths of the LSU backfield.

Gambling on college football games has become so widespread in recent years that many coaches have found it necessary to provide, along with instruction on blocking and tackling, a brief course in recognizing gamblers, particularly those bent on bribery.

And before the present case broke, Louisiana State had even gone so far as to hire a security officer for the football team. He is Mike Toppus, a former FBI agent whose job, simply, is to protect players from gamblers.

The three players—halfbacks Jim Dousay and Billy Masters and fullback Gawn DIBetta—were praised by the FBI for helping in the Graziano case. Graziano was released on $5,000 bond.

Though boxing and horseracing have periodic scandals involving the outcome of events, attempts to bribe players in various sports do not seem very widespread or organized in recent years.

The current case, for instance, will be only the second one prosecuted under a 1964 federal act outlawing bribery attempts involving teams playing interstate schedules.

In 1965, two basketball players at Seattle University were indicted for point shaving—attempting to reduce the number of points by which their team won. A Chicago tavern owner was also arrested.

Probably the biggest bribery scandal in college sports was exposed in 1951 when 37 basketball players from 22 colleges were shown to be involved in fix attempts covering 86 games. There have been other isolated incidents involving football and several in baseball, though you have to go all the way back to 1919 and the Black Sox scandal to find a widespread fix.

Corbett calls gambling, "the greatest menace to intercollegiate athletics in the United States."

"No one is above being approached," Paul Dietzel, coach at the University of South Carolina and formerly at Louisiana State and West Point, said in Columbia, S.C.

"One of the most common approaches is the one in which the gambler takes on the apparently innocent role of an enthusiastic alumnus. He's happy his team won the game and slaps the selected player on the shoulder and offers him a congratulatory hand afterwards—with a $10 or $50 bill," said Dietzel.

If the player protests, Dietzel continued, the gambler says, "No, no, that was a great win. I won a package on the game and I want you to have it. Take your girl out for a good time."

The process is repeated and the amount increased in following weeks, Dietzel said, and soon there are suggestions about shaving points, with a threat of photographs having been taken of the money changing hands.

Most coaches try to keep their players isolated from outside pressures, but some can be more sure of the results than others. Universities in or near big cities obviously can do little to regulate traffic on or off campus. But the schools in the more isolated college towns can take a few precautions.

Ara Parseghian, coach at Notre Dame, describes his system:

"The boys are just too busy. They're in school during the day, then they have meetings and practice and eat at the training table. We live together."

"Nobody can interview any of the players without permission from me or the athletic department. If anybody calls a player directly, the boy is told to say, 'I'm not permitted to talk to you without permission.'"

Parseghian says he doesn't even see cards listing point spreads and doesn't "even know what goes on in the stands."

As for the Louisiana State case, one coach is convinced that the FBI only arrested Graziano after it was unable to get him to tell who he was working for. Under the federal law, he faces a maximum fine of $10,000 or five years in jail or both.

One perhaps unexpected result of the arrest, was the sudden slowdown in the flow of gambling activity in Louisiana. A bookie servicing a well-traveled part of New Orleans suddenly locked his doors to all bettors on the LSU-Florida game Saturday, and the same thing happened in Alexandria.

BIG PAYDAY AT ATOKAD

Spicie Punch Returns $224

... LARGEST OF NEBRASKA SEASON

South Sioux City—A horse that had failed to finish better than sixth in three previous starts returned the biggest payoff on the Nebraska circuit this year by winning the first race at Atokad here Wednesday.

Spicie Punch, a three-year-old owned by Dorothy McPherson of Lincoln, returned $224.40 for a win ticket and helped push the daily double payoff to $1,732.60 also the largest of the current Nebraska season.

The horse, ridden by Larry Bird, was third in the early part of the race, but came on to win by a length over Our Dondi in the six-furlong first race for three-year-old maidens.

Only $18 was bet on Spicie Punch to win with eight $2 win tickets out and one $6 combination. Only seven tickets were sold on the daily double combination of Spicie Punch and Dear Eyes.

The opening race signaled a high payoff day with Bright Missy paying $23.40 to win in the fourth and Pelon returning $65.80 for a win ticket in the eighth race here.

Class A Prep Teams Face Tough Obstacles This Week

... TECH, PIUS NOT THREATENED, HOWEVER

By DON FORSYTHIE
Prep Sports Writer

While top-ranked Omaha Tech and Lincoln Pius X should enjoy relatively easy assignments this week, most of the other Class A leaders have tougher obstacles confronting them.

No. 1 Tech tangles with Council Bluffs Thomas Jefferson, a 57-0 victim of Creighton Prep last week, and No. 2 Pius X meets Class B Fairbury.

Some of the other Class A battles could prompt some realignment in the ratings.

Third-ranked Omaha Westside meets improving Bellevue, which now carries a 3-3 record and the No. 9 ranking. The Chieftains, losers to Tech, Northeast and Creighton Prep, made a strong showing last week in blanking North, 14-0.

Sixth-ranked Benson hosts eighth-ranked Creighton Prep and seventh-ranked Bishop Ryan will meet North in other major metro battles.

The outstate headliner will be played at Scottsbluff as Kearney invades for the battle of the Bearcats.

Kearney, 6-0 and ranked No. 5 in Class A, is seeking a second straight Big Ten title after failing to win in its first 20 years in the league.

Scottsbluff, the traditional West Big Ten power, has displayed signs of its oldtime power in reeling off four straight wins for a 4-1-1 record.

While Scottsbluff bids to crack the state picture by upsetting Kearney, Lincoln High tries to bolster its bid for a spot in the ratings as it travels to North Platte.

The Links are 4-1-1 and a win against the Bulldogs would put them in position to claim the Trans-Nebraska title in next week's test against Northeast.

A look at this week's top games with favored teams listed in boldface type:

Grand Island v. Northeast (at Seacrest) — Islanders starting to show some spark, but Rockets will dampen their fire.

Pius X at Fairbury — Thunderbolts have too much quickness. Southeast at Beatrice — Orange-men have enough offense to win this one.

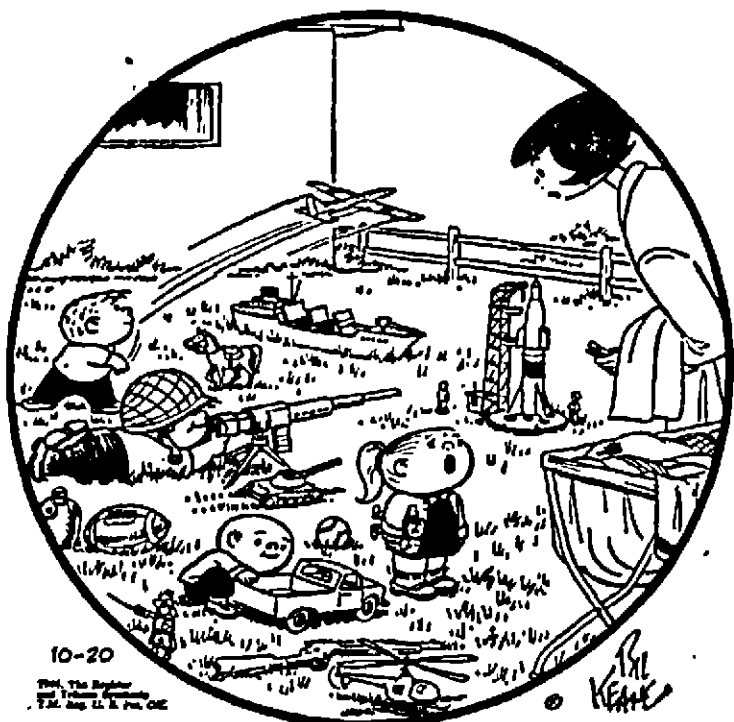

Lincoln High at North Platte — Won't be easy unless Links can curb their fumble and mistakes. Kearney at Scottsbluff — West Big Ten title up for grabs here. Bellevue at O. Westside — Could be the week's top game.

DID YOU KNOW THIS? IT'S A FACT:
Last year 543 professional rodeos were held in the United States compared with a little over 500 the year before.
The world's most urgent human problem is a shortage of low-cost, high quality protein.
The blood proteins of only one animal, the chimpanzee, are indistinguishable from man's.

CU Publicist Recalls Husker Series

... DEVANEY MESSING UP FOND MEMORIES, HOWEVER

By FRED CASOTTI
Colorado Sports Publicist

Boulder, Colo.—Inasmuch as the Nebraska series packs as much color and tradition as any game on the Colorado schedule, I'd like to reminisce a bit with some of my own personal high memories of the series since it became a Big Eight affair in 1948.

(Unfortunately, Bob Devaney ain't been too co-operative since he's been at Lincoln and there haven't been any major upheavals during those four years and if he ain't careful he'll completely screw up the series. Here, then, are pre-Devaney highlights.)

The renewal got off to a wild beginning in 1948 as two touchdown underdogs Colorado marched 63 yards in the final 1:40 of the first half to take a 13-6 lead and upset the Huskers 19-6 with Harry Narcisian, Don Hagin and Malcolm Miller leading an offensive effort which saw the Buffaloes outgain Nebraska, 370-146.

Colorado continued to haunt the Huskers at Boulder, winning in another upset in 1950, 28-19, as CU tailback Zack Jordan riddled Husker defenses for a then-school record 273 yards of total offense (60 rushing, 213 passing) to hand Nebraska and its All-American Bobby Reynolds, (who scored all three Husker TDs) its first loss of the season.

The two teams staged another wild battle at Boulder in 1952 as Nebraska apparently sewed up the game with a TD which put them ahead 16-10 with 2:11 left only to see Carroll Hardy flee 84 yards to the nine with the kickoff to set up a tying score, then miss the winning conversion with 1:33 remaining. Nebraska still had time to speed to the CU 16 but Reynolds missed what would have been the winning FG.

A great goal line stand, featuring Frank Bernardi's fourth-down tackle of NU's Bob Smith at the goal line, thwarted the Huskers 14-10 at Lincoln in 1953 but the Nebraskans came up with the sweetest upset to that date in 1954 as they de-railed Colorado's Orange Bowl-bound express, 20-6, with Willie Greenlaw, a man who was to haunt the Buffs for two years, leading a second-half surge which saw NU completely outplay the Buffs after a 6-6 halftime tie. Greenlaw ran 10 and 11 for the second-half TDs and had a 69-yard gallop called back because of a penalty.

Greenlaw was even more spectacular the next year as he recovered a CU fumble of the opening kickoff at the 16 to set up the first TD then quickly scored the next two, still in the first quarter, on a scrimmage run of 47 and a 95-yard interception. The Buffs never recovered and went down 37-20.

Colorado then won three straight in 1956-7-8 but the 1958 game featured the most amazing punting exhibition in Big 8 history. NU QB George Harshman kicked out of bounds on the Buff 12 in second period but Huskers were offside. He kicked out on two but same penalty. He kicked out on seven but same penalty. Finally, on his fourth try, from the CU 49, he kicked out on the one.

Nebraska kept Colorado's 1959 club out of the Orange Bowl with a 14-12 upset at Lincoln in bitter cold weather as Don Fricke skittered 62 with an interception and ponderous IIB Carroll Zaruba lumbered 73 yards to frustrate the Buffs.

One of Nebraska's lowest moments in grid history came in 1961 when the Huskers failed to make a first down but stayed in the game all the way losing by only 7-0 despite 20 CU first downs and 343 yards offense. Nebraska totaled 31 yards.

Colorado's 1962 catastrophe, featuring a pure pass offense and an impure porous defense, gave Nebraskans a mild scare, leading 6-0 at the half and almost breaking Leon Mavity on the second-half kickoff. But the Cornhuskers rallied for 23 points in the last 10 minutes of the third period to win 31-6 and since then it has been a quiet series for Buffalo fans with CU teams going down to 41-6, 21-3 and 38-13 whippings the past three years.

LEGAL NOTICE OF MEASURES TO BE VOTED UPON NOVEMBER 8, 1966. BALLOT TITLES AND TEXTS OF CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS PROPOSED BY THE 1965 LEGISLATURE SEVENTY-FIFTH SESSION

PROPOSED BY THE 1965 LEGISLATURE

Proposed Amendment No. 1
Constitutional amendment to eliminate the ineligibility of elective executive officers to any other state office during the term for which they have been elected.
☐ For

TEXT OF PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

Be it enacted by the people of the State of Nebraska,

Section 1. That at the general election in November, 1966, there shall be submitted to the electors of the State of Nebraska for approval the following amendment to Article IV, section 2, of the Constitution of Nebraska, which is hereby proposed by the Legislature:

"Sec. 2. No person shall be eligible to the office of Governor, or Lieutenant Governor, who shall not have attained the age of thirty years, and who shall not have been for five years next preceding his election a resident and citizen of this state and a citizen of the United States. "The necessary revenue of the state and its governmental subdivisions shall be raised by taxation in such manner as the Legislature may direct. Taxes shall be levied by valuation uniformly and proportionately upon all tangible property and franchises, except that the Legislature may provide for a different method of taxing motor vehicles and may also establish a separate class of motor vehicles consisting of those owned and held for resale by motor vehicle dealers which shall be taxed in the manner and to the extent as provided by the Legislature and may also establish a separate class for trucks, trailers, semi-trailers, truck-trailers, or combinations thereof, consisting of those owned by residents and nonresidents of this state, and operating in interstate commerce, and may provide for a proportionate taxation of such vehicles; Provided, that such tax proceeds from motor vehicles taxed in each county shall be allocated to the state, counties, towns, cities, villages, and school districts of such county in the same proportion that the levy of each bears to the total levy of said county on personal tangible property. The Legislature may enact laws to provide that the value of land actively devoted to agricultural or horticultural use, shall, for property tax purposes, be that value which such land has for agricultural or horticultural use without regard to any value which such land might have for other purposes or uses, and prescribes standards and methods for the determination of the value of real or other tangible property at uniform and proportionate values. Taxes uniform as to class of property or the ownership or use thereof may be levied by valuation or otherwise upon classes of intangible property as the Legislature may determine, and such intangible property held in trust or otherwise for the purpose of funding pension, profit-sharing, or other employee benefit plans as defined by the Legislature may be declared to be exempt from taxation. Taxes, other than private taxes, may be authorized by law. Existing revenue laws shall continue in effect until changed by the Legislature. The Legislature may provide that livestock shall constitute a separate and distinct class of property for purposes of taxation and may further provide for reciprocal and proportionate taxation of livestock located in this state for only part of a year."

TEXT OF PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

Be it enacted by the people of the State of Nebraska,

Section 1. That at the general election in November, 1966, there shall be submitted to the electors of the State of Nebraska for approval the following amendment to Article IV, section 4, of the Constitution of Nebraska, which is hereby proposed by the Legislature:

"Sec. 28. The Legislature shall provide for a Commission on Judicial Qualifications consisting of: (1) Two Judges of the Supreme Court, two judges of the various district courts, one judge of a municipal court, one judge of the Nebraska Workers' Compensation Court, and one judge of the county courts, all of whom shall be appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court; (2) two members of the Nebraska State Bar Association who shall have practiced law in this state for at least ten years and who shall be appointed by the Executive Council of the Nebraska State Bar Association; and (3) two citizens, neither of whom shall be a Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court, active or retired, nor a member of the Nebraska State Bar Association, and who shall be appointed by the Governor."

Sec. 29. The Commission on Judicial Qualifications shall select one of its members to serve as its chairman. The chairman shall act by a vote of the majority of its members and no action of the commission shall be valid unless concurred in by the majority of its members."

Sec. 30. (1) A Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or judge of any court of this state may be removed from office for (a) willful misconduct in office, (b) willful disregard of or failure to perform his duties, (c) habitual intemperance, (d) conviction of a crime involving moral turpitude, or (e) disbarment as a member of the legal profession licensed to practice law in the State of Nebraska, or he may be retired for physical or mental disability seriously interfering with the performance of his duties if such disability is determined to be permanent or reasonably likely to become permanent. Any citizen of the State of Nebraska may request the Commission on Judicial Qualifications to consider the qualifications of any Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge, and in such event, the commission shall make such investigation as the commission deems necessary and in its discretion may order a hearing to be held before it concerning the removal or retirement of such Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge. In the alternative or in addition, the commission may request the Supreme Court to appoint one or more special masters who shall be judges of court of record to hear and take evidence in any such matter, and to report to the commission. If, after hearing, or after considering the record and report of the masters, the commission finds good cause therefore, it shall recommend to the Supreme Court that the Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge involved shall be removed or retired as the case may be."

(2) The Supreme Court shall review the record of the proceedings and in its discretion may permit the introduction of additional evidence. The Supreme Court shall make such determination as it finds just and proper, and may order the removal or retirement of such Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge, or may wholly reject the recommendation. Upon an order for retirement, the Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge shall be removed from office and his salary shall cease from the date of such order."

(3) All papers filed with and proceedings before the commission or masters appointed by the Supreme Court pursuant to this section shall be confidential and the filing of papers with and the testimony given before the commission or masters shall be deemed a privileged communication. The Supreme Court shall by rule provide for procedure under this section before the commission, the masters and the Supreme Court."

(4) No Justice or Judge who is a member of the commission or of the Supreme Court shall participate, as a member of such commission, or as a master, or as a member of the Supreme Court, in any proceedings involving his own removal or retirement."

Sec. 31. These amendments are alternative to and cumulative with the methods of removal of Justices and judges provided in Article III, section 17, and Article IV, section 5, of this Constitution, and any other provision of law relating to the removal of Justices, judges, and judges of the courts of this state."

Section 1. That at the general election in November, 1966, there shall be submitted to the electors of the State of Nebraska for approval the following amendments of the Constitution of Nebraska, which are set forth in section 2 of this act and which are hereby proposed by the Legislature:

Sec. 2. The amendments proposed are as follows:
(1) To amend Article VII, section 9, to read as follows:

"Sec. 9. All funds belonging to the state for educational purposes, the interest and income whereof only are to be used, shall be deemed trust funds held by the state, and the state shall supply any net aggregate losses there realized during any calendar year that may in any manner accrue, so that the same shall remain forever inviolate and undiminished; and notwithstanding any other provisions in the Constitution shall be invested by the Board of Educational Lands and Funds as the Legislature may by statute provide. Such funds with the interest and income thereof, are hereby solemnly pledged to the purposes for which they are granted and set apart, and shall not be transferred to any other fund for other uses."

(2) To amend Article XV by adding a new section to be known as section 17 and to read as follows:

"Sec. 17. Notwithstanding section 3 of Article XIII or any other provision in the Constitution:
(1) The Legislature may provide for the investment of any state funds, including retirement or pension funds of state employees and Nebraska school employees in such manner and in such investments as it may by statute provide; and
(2) The Legislature may authorize the investment of retirement or pension funds of cities, villages, school districts, public power districts, and other governmental or political subdivisions in such manner and in such investments as the governing body of such city, village, school district, public power district and other governmental or political subdivision may determine but subject to such limitations as the Legislature may by statute provide."

"Sec. 5. At the regular session of the Legislature held in the year nineteen hundred and thirty-five, the Legislature shall by law determine the number of members to be elected and divide the state into legislative districts. In the creation of such districts, any county that contains population sufficient to entitle it to two or more members of the Legislature shall be divided into separate and distinct legislative districts, as nearly equal in population as may be and composed of contiguous and compact territory. One member of the Legislature shall be elected from each such district. The basis of apportionment shall be the population excluding aliens, as shown by the next preceding federal census. Legislative redistricting of the state after each federal decennial census. In any such redistricting, county lines shall be followed whenever practicable, but other established lines may be followed at the discretion of the Legislature."

Sec. 7. At the general election to be held in November, 1966, one-half the members of the Legislature, or as nearly thereto as may be practicable, shall be elected for a term of four years, and the remainder for a term of two years, and thereafter all members shall be elected for a term of four years, with the manner of such election to be determined by the Legislature. Provided, that when the Legislature is redistricted the members elected prior to the redistricting shall continue in office, and the law providing for such redistricting shall where necessary specify the newly established district which they shall represent for the balance of their term. Each member shall be nominated and elected in a nonpartisan manner and without any indication on the ballot that he is affiliated with or endorsed by any political party or organization. Each member of the Legislature shall receive a salary of not to exceed two hundred dollars per month during the term of his office. In addition to his salary, each member shall receive an amount equal to his actual expenses in traveling by the most usual route once to and returning from each regular or special session of the Legislature. Members of the Legislature shall receive no pay nor perquisites other than said salary and expenses, and such members shall receive no compensation other than their salary or per diem."

New Issue Shows Up In Georgia

Atlanta, Ga. (AP)—Two hard-line segregationists are pressing their campaigns for governor on a new issue: who could be depended upon to act more responsibly during the next four years?

Howard H. (Bo) Callaway, 39, who two years ago became the state's first Republican congressman since Reconstruction, raised the issue with speeches implying that election of Democrat Lester Maddox might bring martial law and the closing of public schools.

Maddox, 51, called the statement further evidence of "desperation on the part of my opponent who might as well quit now and save his money." He cited his overwhelming defeat of former Gov. Ellis Arnall in the Democratic runoff Sept. 28 as proof that the people believe he is a responsible candidate.

Meanwhile, there is growing dissatisfaction among the state's moderates over the choice between Callaway and Maddox. With labor organizations and Negro leaders in the forefront, they have started a move for a write-in vote for Arnall Nov. 8.

If no one received a majority, the predominantly Democratic state legislature would decide at a joint session Jan. 10 which of the two high men would be governor until January 1971.

Here is the new tactic Callaway, who ignored Maddox in opening his campaign Sept. 30 and for several days later: "The congressman says that while he was working long hours two years ago to calm racial unrest at Americus, in this district, 'my opponent went to a Klan rally there.' He says the difference between himself and his opponent 'is like day and night.'"

Callaway says that if he is governor, Georgia will get along "without four years of martial law and without closing a single school—that's my pledge." He says Maddox has a "desire to stand up and fight the federal government in the streets."

Maddox replies that his election would assure that there would be no racial rioting "because everyone knows that I stand for law and order and I wouldn't tolerate anything like that." He says he doesn't know whether Callaway is "a hybrid or a chameleon."

"I don't know where he stands and the people don't know where he stands," Maddox says.

Callaway counters that "we're not going to have riots in Georgia if I am governor. I went to West Point, and I know how to say 'no' to people."

Along with the talk of who could maintain the public peace, each candidate outlines his platform but the listeners often don't show much interest. Each advocates more money for education, mental health reforms, aid for cities and counties, prison rehabilitation programs, and highway construction.

The victory of Maddox over Arnall for the Democratic nomination—a surprise to the analysts, the experts and the pollsters—brought a quick realignment of political forces.

Old-line Democrats who might have switched to Callaway if the liberal Arnall had won decided they had a proven product in Maddox to retain the state government control held by Democrats since 1871.

Wounded Marine Returns To War, Dies Of Gunshot

Louisville, Ky. (AP)—Marine Lance Cpl. Carl Dobson was wounded in action a few weeks ago in South Viet Nam. A fragment of metal from a grenade stayed in his neck, but he wanted to get back to his outfit, the 2nd Platoon of Headquarters Co. in the 5th Marine Regiment. Last Friday, he returned to the war. Before the day was over, Dobson was shot to death in the Marines' only battle that day. His sister, Patricia, said Dobson went back because "he said his country needed him."

catering to wealthy young women. Police said about 10 women a week paid from $750 to $1,000 to have the operation performed by Mrs. Sorrell Rizzo, the 46-year-old wife of the owner of Jilly's, a famous New York celebrity hangout. The raid by members of New York City's confidential squad, Essex County detectives and East Orange police centered on a luxurious seven-room apartment in a prestigious high rise apartment. Mrs. Rizzo was picked up outside the building and Mrs. Jonnie Mae Morrisett, 40, and Mrs. Claire Pineazike, 52, both of Newark, were found inside.

Kept Watch New York City's Deputy Chief Inspector Joseph McGovern said his office received an anonymous phone tip on the operation several months ago and kept watch on the apartment. McGovern said girls seeking an operation would be met at the Irvington bus station by either Mrs. Morrisett or Mrs. Pineazike and driven to the apartment. "At the last minute Mrs. Rizzo would come in," he said, "and after a half hour or so the girls would be driven back to the station and let go." McGovern said the raiding police officers found an "elaborate set up" including "several carloads" of medical equipment and bandages in the apartment. One of the rooms was fitted out as a well equipped operating room and another as a waiting room. McGovern said the apartment had been rented under a fictitious name, Marion Glenn, since 1964 and had been used as an abortion mill for the last two years.

Young, Rich All the customers, he said, were in their early twenties and nicely dressed. "They came from all over the eastern part of the country," he said, "and there were no poor people among them."

McGovern said the method of making the original contact was still under investigation. Jilly's is known as New York headquarters for Sinatra's "Rat Pack," which includes such entertainers as Sammy Davis Jr., Dean Martin, Peter Lawford and Joey Bishop. Mrs. Rizzo, nicknamed "Honey King," was said to be a personal friend of Sinatra, as is her husband.

Essex County Prosecutor Brendan Byrne said Mrs. Rizzo gave her occupation as "interior decorator."

Israeli Soldier, Three Arabs Killed In Gunbattle Near Lebanon Border

Jerusalem (UPI) — An Israeli soldier and three Arab infiltrators were killed Wednesday in a gunbattle near the border with Lebanon, Israeli military officials reported. A fourth Arab terrorist was seriously wounded and captured.

(Radio Damascus, in a broadcast heard Wednesday in Beirut, Lebanon, quoted Syrian Interior Minister Mohammed Eld Ashawi as saying that a showdown between Syria and Israel was imminent.

(Ashawi, who is head of a committee in charge of "popular mobilization" in Syria, said the atmosphere was reminiscent of the situation just prior to the Suez crisis in 1956.

(The radio quoted Ashawi as saying that Syria was ready to "settle its accounts with Israel and the battle will take place without any doubt.")

The clash erupted as United Nations observers completed an inspection of Israel's 45-mile frontier with Syria and reported they found no evidence of an Israeli military buildup as charged by Syria and the Soviet Union.

Seven teams of observers accompanied by Israeli liaison officers carried out an 11-hour check of the area on both sides of the border and officials said it went smoothly and in the spirit of good will.

A report on the inspection, which was requested by Israel, will be sent to U.N. Secretary General U. Thant for Gen. Odd Bull of Norway, commander of the peacekeeping force in the area.

House Agrees To Establish Committee To Study Ethics

Washington (AP) — The House voted 255 to 10 Wednesday night to set up a 12-member select committee to recommend regulations "to insure proper standards of conduct" by members and employees.

It agreed on the proposal, in place of one to set up an ethics committee to investigate any charges of "improper conduct," after more than three hours of debate and wrangling. At one point, the House shouted approval of a motion to table the entire matter. But absence of a quorum forced a roll call and members then voted 238 to 24 against tabling the proposal by Rep. Charles E. Bennett, D-Fla.

Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, who had denounced the Bennett proposal as a "self-immolation bill for congressmen," then offered the substitute which transforms the committee from an ethics committee to a study group.

Hays said, "everyone thinks we need some tightening up around here," and said of his proposal: "I think this will be a way out."

Even under Bennett's original proposal, the committee would have only lasted as long as the 89th Congress is in existence — until next Jan. 3.

Rules In Trial Revealed

Cleveland (UPI)—Common Pleas Court Judge Francis J. Talty Wednesday laid down stringent rules for press coverage of the second murder trial of Dr. Samuel Sheppard. The guidelines virtually were the same as those imposed at last week's change of venue hearing.

Talty, who will be presiding judge when the trial opens next Monday, barred cameras, sound recording devices and stenograph machines from the courthouse during the trial or related proceedings, and at any recess or adjournment.

He also banned the installation of teletype machines or special telephones.

Talty said there would be 14 seats reserved for the press, broken down in this manner:

One for United Press International, one for the Associated Press, two for the Cleveland Plain Dealer, two for the Cleveland Press, three for local television stations and five for local radio stations.

Yule Stamps Planned

Vatican City (AP)—The Vatican announced it will issue on Nov. 24 a three-item series of Christmas postage stamps showing a Yuletide scene by Roman sculptor Lello Scorselli. It will be the eighth straight year for Vatican Christmas stamps.

REGISTERED NURSES COMMISSIONED

Five registered nurses were commissioned Second Lieutenants in the Army Nurse Corps, at Army Recruiting headquarters in Lincoln Wednesday. It marked the first time nurses received a commission prior to orientation at the Army Medical Training Center, Fort

10,000 GE Workers End Strikes

By United Press International
Nearly 10,000 General Electric workers returned to production lines Wednesday at plants in Evendale, Ohio, and Pittsfield, Mass. An estimated 20,000 to 25,000 other GE employees remained off the job in 10 Eastern and Midwestern cities.

Approximately 6,300 members of the United Auto Workers (UAW) and International Association of Machinists (IAM) ended their strike at Evendale under a government-asked Taft-Hartley Act injunction and began building engines for phantom jet fighters widely used in Viet Nam. Some 3,500 members of the International Union of Electrical Workers (IUE) returned to work at Pittsfield after striking draftsmen withdrew pickets from six of 20 gates.

Anti-Catholic Released

Belfast, Northern Ireland (UPI)—The Rev. Ian Paisley, fiery anti-Catholic leader of the extremist Free Presbyterian Church was freed after serving a three-month jail sentence for refusing to give an undertaking not to keep the peace. He was met by 200 cheering supporters and immediately planned "a really good Protestant rally" when two other ministers are released.

Four hundred draftsmen, members of the American Federation of Technical Engineers (AFTE), remained on strike at Pittsfield. The AFL-CIO Coordinating Committee in Washington said up to 25,000 GE employees remained on strike at 10 plants.

At Syracuse, N.Y., 1,500 GE workers began a 24-hour strike over local grievances. It was due to end Thursday noon.

However, at Owensboro, Ky., the 4,000 members of Allied Industrial Workers Local 783 voted to accept a new GE contract, averting a strike threatened for midnight at the GE electronics tube plant.

'Warning' On Technology Suggested

Washington (AP)—A House subcommittee wants Congress to set up an "early warning system" to inform the public of dangers that may accompany advances in technology.

The subcommittee on science, research and development said in a report released Wednesday night, "We can no longer blindly adapt technology to our needs without making allowances in advance for the serious side-effects which such technology may carry with it."

It urged House committees to establish science subcommittees to examine technological aspects of bills before them. And it recommended establishment of a technology assessment board to keep tabs on the potential dangers, as well as the benefits, inherent in new technology and simultaneously informing the public of the nature of them.

The subcommittee said it does not envision the board as having regulatory authority. "We are not thinking of the board's authority in terms of a 'stoplight' but rather in terms of an 'early warning' system," the report said.

ADVERTISMENT How To Hold FALSE TEETH

More Firmly In Place
Do your false teeth annoy and embarrass you when you eat, laugh or talk? Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This alkaline (non-acid) powder holds false teeth more firmly and more comfortably. No gummy, gooey, nasty taste or feeling. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath." Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get FASTEETH at all drug counters.
